Names Board of Three In Effort to Reach Settlement
TRUCE DECLARED
Rival Union Factions
Are Striving to Win Control

Washington—President Roosevelt intervened today to prevent a strike of 25,000 railroad and shipping employees in the New York metropolitan area. He appointed an emergency board of three to try to work out a settlement.

Names of the board members will be announced later.

A walkout of the members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees had been scheduled for noon last Saturday, but was deferred until noon today to permit further mediation. This failed at meetings yesterday.

The brotherhood demands 20 cents an hour increase in wages.

Acting under the railway labor act, the president, in his proclamation creating the board, said the dispute threatened "substantially to interrupt interstate commerce within the state of New York and other states in the eastern part of the country to a degree such as to deprive that section of the country of essential transportation service."

EXPLAINS BREECHES
Plymouth, England—P. James W. Gerard, arriving on the liner Queen Mary, explained today why he will wear knee breeches at the coronation of King George VI.

"If my host dines in pajamas," said the chief American delegate to the ceremonies May 12, "I should wear pajamas, too."

"When I am a guest I wear clothes similar to my hosts. On this occasion my hosts will wear court dress, therefore I shall wear court dress."

Four New Justices Are Suggested as Court Compromise

Administration Spokesman
Turns Down Proposal
For Limit of Two

Washington—Senators who declined to be quoted by name said today an administration spokesman had discussed compromising the supreme court dispute by authorizing four new justices, but had turned down suggestions for only two.

There were no signs of an agreement or modification, however, on the eve of the senate judiciary committee's first closed session to begin voting on the court bill. The measure would permit appointment of six new justices if members over 70 do not retire.

Opponents have indicated they would fight all modifications in order to force a test vote on the bill as it stands.

The opposition strategy will be to seek first to split the president's proposals into two bills, separating the supreme court issue from recommendations to speed up judicial processes. Senator Van Nuys (D-Ind.) said he would ask for an early vote.

Political Plot Is Hinted in Slaying

Daughter of Paraguayan
Minister Found Fatally
Wounded in Auto

Vienna—A theory that political intrigue was responsible for the death of Ingrid Wingreen, beautiful daughter of the Paraguayan minister to Austria, was under investigation by authorities today.

The 29-year-old woman, said by police to have been a believer in the occult, was found, fatally wounded, alone in her automobile on a highway near Neunkirchen. She died in a hospital without regaining consciousness. Her purse apparently had not been touched.

The newspaper Telegraf said the police were trying to find out the source of money which Miss Wingreen received from Germany.

Of late, the newspaper added, she was supplied plentifully with cash and traveled across borders with a diplomatic passport.

Her father, Gustav Wingreen, had been on leave since last June, and the daughter lived alone. Officers said she had dined with a friend at Wiener Neustadt and was on her way to Nogitz to visit Hans Steiner, a writer on spiritualism. One of his books was in the car.

Insurrection Law Declared Invalid

Supreme Court Holds
Georgia Law of 1871
Is Unconstitutional

Washington—The supreme court declared unconstitutional today an 1871 Georgia law prohibiting insurrection against the state, under which Angelo Herndon, Cincinnati Negro Communist organizer, was sentenced to an 18 to 20 years penitentiary term.

Justice Roberts delivered the 5 to 4 decision holding that the law "violates the guarantees of liberty embodied in the fourteenth amendment."

Justice Van Devanter delivered a dissenting opinion in which Justices McReynolds, Sutherland and Butler joined.

Justice Roberts asserted in concluding his opinion that "The statute as construed and applied amounts merely to a drag net which may ensnare anyone who agitates for a change of government if a jury can be persuaded that he ought to have foreseen his words would have some effect on the future conduct of others."

"No reasonably ascertainable standard of guilt is prescribed. So vague and indeterminate are the boundaries thus set to the freedom of speech and assembly that the law necessarily violates the guarantees of liberty embodied in the fourteenth amendment."

The decision reversed a ruling by the Georgia Supreme court upholding the statute which was passed during the reconstruction days.

Economy Plea Facing First Senate Test

Upper House May Consider
Educational Aid Bill
This Week

BYRD FOR MERGER
Would Consolidate FHA
And HOLC Agencies
To Cut Expenses

Washington—President Roosevelt's plea for reduced government spending will get its first senate test this week on a motion to consider the Harrison-Black educational aid bill.

This bill, proposing a maximum appropriation of $200,000,000 a year for federal aid to schools, is one which administration leaders have said must be deferred if congress is to adhere to the president's program to bring income and outgo closer together.

A vote on taking up the measure may come tomorrow. The death of Senator Bachman (D-Tenn.) resulted in a decision to adjourn today in respect to his memory.

The house will debate later in the week the $400,000,000 war department appropriation bill. Representative Taber (R-N.Y.) has served notice he would ask a 10 per cent cut in the funds.

The bill provides only for military activities. The department's non-military functions—chiefly rivers and harbors improvement by army engineers—will be covered in a separate measure.

From Senator Byrd (D-Va.) long an advocate of economy, came a proposal during the weekend for consolidation of the federal housing administration and the home owners' loan corporation.

Sees Big Savings
Byrd said experts had informed him the merger would save $24,500,000 annually without impairing the functions of either agency. He said the FHA and HOLC employed 20,000 persons last year and spent nearly $47,000,000.

Byrd also asserted there were 20 or more other government agencies which should be consolidated, merged or liquidated, but did not name them.

United States Chamber of Commerce officials expressed the opinion informally that Mr. Roosevelt perhaps had underestimated tax receipts in presenting to congress the figures on which he based his economy plea. The chamber opened its session today.

ON TRIAL TUESDAY
Newark, N. J.—Federal Judge William Clark announced today he would preside at the trial opening tomorrow, of Ellis H. Parker (above), and his son and three others, charged with violation of the "Lindbergh law" in the kidnapping of Paul H. Wendel, former Trenton lawyer. Wendel has claimed he was forced to make a confession of the Lindbergh kidnapping which he later repudiated.

Rebels Advance Through Basque Lines in Spain

Occupy Verriz, Four Miles From Durango. Gateway to Bilbao

By the Associated Press
The Spanish government fleet steamed into major action against insurgents in Mediterranean waters today. Valencia authorities charged simultaneously that the German cruiser Leipzig acted as a scout for the insurgents.

Raid by government warships on insurgent territory along the southern coast were reported. Insurgents pushing toward Bilbao in the north said the town of Eibar, one of Spain's chief manufacturing centers, had been set afire by government militia. Insurgents expected to enter the strategic town tomorrow. Eibar is just to the east of Durango.

Insurgents cut a wide path through Basque defenses today and occupied Verriz, strategic communication center only four miles from Durango, gateway to Bilbao. Capture of the town cut off Durango from the Eibar sector to the east. Government railroad lines were severed.

"The Basques are in headlong flight," an insurgent communique said.

Basque dispatches to Hendaye, on the Franco-Spanish border, said

False Pretenses Trial Opened at Janesville

Janesville—Complicated dealings in which more than $13,000 is alleged to have been obtained by John Gregg, Rockford, in a central heating plant project at Belvidere, Ill., were told from the witness stand in circuit court here today as Gregg's trial began before a jury.

Gregg is charged with seven counts of obtaining money under false pretenses, most of it from Chris Hanson, Clinton, and Jay Andrews, Beloit.

Hanson, the first witness, told of visiting the heating plant and of repeated investments made on Gregg's representations. The trial is expected to take nearly a week to complete.

Amelia Plans to Resume Flight by Next Saturday

New York—Amelia Earhart today said she would resume her interrupted round-the-world flight by next Saturday. She said her globe-trotting flight, halted at Honolulu on the first try by a take-off crash, would be started again with Buick bank, Calif., the hopping off place.

Bus Drivers Threaten Strike While London Makes Plans for Coronation

London—The British government moved today to avert a threat of a strike by London's 40,000 busmen which might bring a major transportation tie-up while the city is jammed with coronation crowds.

Officials of the ministry of labor's conciliation department scheduled conferences with members of the traffic and transport board and with representatives of the Transport and General Workers' union.

They hoped at least to get the busmen to agree to a truce until the King George is crowned May 12.

The government feared that if busmen adhered to their announced intention of quitting work at mid-night Friday the dispute might spread to the city's streetcar and subway workers.

A walkout by those employees would virtually paralyze the complicated system of services planned to handle the coronation crowds, unless a settlement could be reached before then.

Some 2,500 bobbies have been instructed to operate more than 30 new bus routes. Presumably they would not strike.

The bus employees want a 7 1/2 hour working day, compared with their present 8 hour day.

"This is no spectacular feat," said an official of the Transport and General Workers' union. We intend to go through with it unless our demands are met."

Officials of the traffic and transport board argued that the 7 1/2 hour day is financially impractical, asserting it would cost $3,250,000 a year.

Londoners saw another coronation rehearsal yesterday—but this one was for the horses that will be in the procession. Thousands along the streets cheered, in compliance with a police request, so the animals would get used to the noise they will hear May 12.

Age Pensions Up for Review In High Court

Tribunal Agrees to Pass on Constitutionality of Provisions

READS 15 OPINIONS

No Decision Announced on Validity of Unemployment Insurance

Washington—The supreme court agreed today to review a test case to determine the constitutionality of the old age pension provisions of the federal social security act.

It postponed a final decision at least until next Monday on validity of the unemployment insurance provisions of the federal act and of supplementary legislation passed by states.

Some supreme court observers expressed the opinion that the tribunal might hold up its decision on the unemployment insurance case until after arguments on the old age pension litigation so both could be decided at the same time.

Fifteen opinions were read today by the justices in a two hour session.

One of them, a 5 to 4 decision set aside the conviction of Agostino Hernandez, a Cincinnati Negro Communist organizer, under a Georgia anti-sedition statute.

Age Pension Case

In the old age pension case, the court consented to pass on an appeal filed by the government from a decision by the federal circuit court at Boston holding unconstitutional that section of the major administration

Litigation to determine the validity of the unemployment compensation section of the act already has been argued and is awaiting decision. It was filed by a suit by George P. Davis, a stockholder, to enjoin Edison Electric Illuminating company of Boston from paying the taxes imposed under the act to provide annuities for employees.

Both sides to the litigation asked the supreme court for a prompt ruling.

In the government's petition, Solicitor General Stanley Reed said 26,000,000 persons had "registered for prospective benefits" and that taxes were being collected from 26,000,000 employees and 2,700,000 employers.

Sustains Minnesota Tax
The supreme court sustained today a 1934 Minnesota property tax on shares in Montana and North Dakota state bank owned by the First Bank Stock corporation of Minneapolis, Minn.

It was contended by the Minneapolis concern that only the state of incorporation could constitutionally impose such a tax. It had paid assessments to Montana and North Dakota on the stock, valued by Minnesota at $1,027,095.

'Mystery Guests' are Not Linked With Gas Victim

New York—The simple label of "coincidence" was placed by police today upon the suicide of a 25-year-old actress and the gathering of about 100 party-bound "mystery guests" in the lobby of her Park avenue apartment house while she was inhaling gas.

The actress was Mrs. Helen Kim Mont, one-month bride of James Mont, fashionable interior decorator. Police closed the case, which at first appeared to have elements of a mystery thriller, with assertion that the phantom party and the suicide were unconnected.

The party guests assembled in the lobby as the result of a chain-letter hoax perpetrated by bored Park avenue funsters, police indicated. The invitations were sent out merely naming the Park avenue address and not Mrs. Mont's apartment, and "guests" were found who knew Mrs. Mont.

LaFollette in Confab With Witte and Haas

Madison—Governor LaFollette lunched today with two members of the new state labor relations board, the Rev. Francis J. Haas of Milwaukee and Prof. Edwin E. Witte of Madison. The third member of the board, Verta Wrabetz of Madison, was out of the city today but planned to confer with the governor after his return.

Stripped of the labor provisions to which the court objected, the new law empowers an enlarged national minimum wage commission to prescribe minimum prices for trade practices for producers and sale violators 19 1/2 per cent of the sale price of their cost at the time.

The commission also may fix maximum prices to protect consumers from "runaway" markets.

Woman Is Witness in Chicago Shooting Case

Chicago—Mrs. Samuel Wilford, pretty 27-year-old brunet, was to tell a coroner's jury today about her five year friendship with Charles Truchan, 21, who was slain by her husband because "I got tired of having him fool around my wife."

While the three Wilford children were at play in one room yesterday, their father, Police Captain Frank Demish said, fired four shots at Truchan. All took effect in the youth's back.

Assistant State Attorney Irwin Clorfen said Mrs. Wilford readily admitted that she and Truchan had been keeping company. She claimed the romance began when her husband permitted the youth to take her to the movies while he worked nights. The woman left her husband, who is 35, and recently filed suit for divorce.

She declared Wilford had invited her and Truchan to his apartment yesterday to talk things over.

Powder Expert on Witness Stand in Trial of Denhardt

Testifies Gas and Powder
Leaked From Gun
When It Was Fired

New Castle, Ky.—The commonwealth through the testimony of experts today endeavored to tighten its chain of circumstantial evidence around Brigadier General Henry H. Denhardt, who is charged murdered comely Verna Garr Taylor.

With the testimony of Clyde T. Erwin, a powder company expert of King's Mill, Ohio, the commonwealth brought out that gas and powder leaked out of the general's gun when it was fired. Photographs made by Erwin in his company's laboratory here introduced to support his statements.

The move by the state was in line with the opening day statements by Commonwealth's Attorney H. B. Kinsolving, Jr., that the testimony of Sergeant John I. Messmer of Louisville Police department would show the general had powder stains on his hands several days after Mrs. Taylor's body was found last November.

Paraffin Tests
Messmer made paraffin tests of both the general's hands and Mrs. Taylor's. Messmer said the general's tests were positive while those of Mrs. Taylor were negative.

The commonwealth called in the powder and gun experts to contest the defense's charge Mrs. Taylor killed herself.

Before testimony was started today the defense moved to strike out testimony regarding heel prints near where Mrs. Taylor's body was found.

Circuit Judge Charles G. Marshall, presiding at the trial of the 61-year-old former lieutenant governor charged with murder of his 40-year-old fiancée, conferred with opposing counsel in his chambers and then took the motion under advisement.

Roosevelt Signs Guffey Coal Bill

Nominates Members of Commission Provided
By New Law

Washington—President Roosevelt today signed the Guffey-Vincent bill, marking a second federal attempt to stabilize the soft coal industry—this time through price fixing alone.

The new law, which becomes effective June 1 for a four year period, is a substitute for the original Guffey coal act, invalidated by the supreme court last year.

The president nominated for the commission which the act created C. F. Hosford, Jr., Pennsylvania, chairman; C. E. Smith, West Virginia; Percy Telow, Ohio; John C. Lewis, Iowa; Thomas S. Raymond, Kentucky; Pleas E. Greenlee, Indiana; and Walter Mamole, Missouri.

John Carson, Michigan, who was secretary to the late Senator Coughlin, of that state, was nominated to be consumers' counsel of the commission.

Hosford, Smith, Telow and Mamole were members of the five-man commission which administered the original bituminous coal act. George E. Acret of Santa Monica, Calif., was the fifth member of that group.

Stripped of the labor provisions to which the court objected, the new law empowers an enlarged national minimum wage commission to prescribe minimum prices for trade practices for producers and sale violators 19 1/2 per cent of the sale price of their cost at the time.

The commission also may fix maximum prices to protect consumers from "runaway" markets.

Man Who Escaped Jail Surrenders to Sheriff

Green Lake, Wis.—Fred "Frency" Deauchamp, who saved his way out of the Green Lake County Jail Nov. 12, 1935, surrendered voluntarily today to Sheriff Leo Barto.

Deauchamp, of Marshfield, escaped while being held in awaiting a circuit court trial on charges of stealing poultry and breaking into a Marquette residence. He left behind $300 of his soldier's bonus which his wife once has tried to recover. The money was deposited in a local bank by the former sheriff.

Stepin Fetchit Is Hurt In Automobile Accident

New York—Stepin Fetchit, the dark Negro stage and screen comic, was in a serious condition in Harlem hospital today as the result of a Sunday automobile accident.

Stepin Fetchit, in private life Lincoln Perry, 40, lost control of his automobile when a "blew out" and the machine crashed into an elevated railway pillar on Eighth avenue in Harlem.

Assistant State Attorney Irwin Clorfen said that he and Truchan had been keeping company. She claimed the romance began when her husband permitted the youth to take her to the movies while he worked nights. The woman left her husband, who is 35, and recently filed suit for divorce.

She declared Wilford had invited her and Truchan to his apartment yesterday to talk things over.

Manslaughter Warrant Is Issued at Madison

Madison—A warrant issued in superior court today charged Delbert Seemeyer, 22, of Madison, with manslaughter in the automobile death of George Ring last week. A coroner's jury found that Seemeyer was driving at an excessive speed when his car, in which Ring was a passenger, struck a tree.

Name Withdrawn: Appointee Is Not Eligible for Post

Washington—President Roosevelt withdrew from the senate today the appointment of Murray W. Latimer of New York to the social security board.

The president acted at the request of Latimer, who said the fact that he was a Democrat apparently barred him from membership.

There are already two Democrats on the board, Arthur J. Altmeyer and Vincent M. Miles. The law states not more than two members shall be of the same political party.

Latimer, now a member of the railway retirement board, was nominated to succeed a Republican on the security board, John G. Winant of New Hampshire, who resigned recently.

Edward Rhoades, Menasha, Dies After Accident

Crushed to Death This Morning While Unloading Light Poles

Menasha—Edward Rhoades, 43, 760 Tayco street, was crushed to death at 10:30 this morning while unloading light poles from a flatcar on the Milwaukee Road tracks at the Menasha Water and Light department warehouse.

Rhoades was on top of the pile of poles when a stake, opposite the side on which men were working, broke and crashed a slide. He was caught and crushed. He died on the way to the hospital.

Mr. Rhoades was born June 15, 1894, at Kaukauna and had lived in Menasha for the last eight years. He was married to Miss Esther Perine at Appleton, June 23, 1926. He was a member of the Germania society.

Survivors include the widow, two sons, Clarence and Farrell; his father, E. C. Rhoades, of Green Bay; his mother, Mrs. E. F. Welch, Appleton; one sister, Mrs. Barney Olson, Appleton.

Sustains Compulsory Compensation Statute

Madison—Circuit Judge Alvin Reis upheld the 1931 statute making workmen's compensation compulsory today in ruling the Mordello Granite company liable for awards totaling more than $20,000 to two employees stricken with silicosis.

The granite plant closed in 1935 but reopened under an agreement whereby 51 laborers became partners to take over the business in order to relieve the company from its liability for compensation.

Judge Reis, in affirming the awards to Joseph Heiler and Robert Zellmer, found the 31 men merely "went through the form of setting up a partnership in the pathological hungry hope of getting their jobs back."

The former compensation act permitted employers or workers to exempt themselves from the law. The 1935 legislature made the act mandatory.

Man Who Escaped Jail Surrenders to Sheriff

Green Lake, Wis.—Fred "Frency" Deauchamp, who saved his way out of the Green Lake County Jail Nov. 12, 1935, surrendered voluntarily today to Sheriff Leo Barto.

Fears Eased When Two Rivers Reach Stationary Point

RAINFALL CEASES
Hundreds Flee to Higher Ground; Merchants Move Stock

Lafayette, Pa.—Firemen from Greensburg and Lionizer aided 150 families of this Westmoreland county community to evacuate their homes today in the path of flood waters from the swollen Loyalhanna creek.

Cumberland, Md.—The Potomac river rose 6 feet above flood stage today and merchants began to move stock out of their stores in the low-lying business section.

Rain was still falling on the headwaters of the river and the crest of the flood was not in sight. Water was standing in streets in the downtown district here, but was not high enough to stop traffic.

Johnstown, Pa.—Flood waters from two rivers inundated homes and business buildings in low-lying sections of Johnstown today and then reached a stationary point, temporarily relieving fears of a major flood.

Waters coursed to a depth of two feet up the lower end of main street—the principal thoroughfare in this city and the scene of two disastrous floods in the past half century.

A heavy 48-hour rainfall stopped at noon.

Hundreds, warned by the swiftly rising waters after an all night rain, moved to higher ground. Merchants in the downtown area, some of whom suffered heavy damage in the big 1936 St. Patrick's day flood, moved their stocks to higher floors.

Business came almost to a standstill while the city prepared for a possible emergency. Schools closed. Trolleys stopped. Trains were re-routed because of washed out tracks. A score of villages in rural areas were isolated. The waters covered parts of numerous highways.

Steel Plant Closed
The big Lower Cambria plant of the Bethlehem Steel corporation was closed after water seeped into the mill. Thousands are employed there.

The flood threat extended all along the vast watersheds from Johnstown to Pittsburgh and south to Wheeling, W. Va., the same territory which counted damage of $200,000,000 in the disaster of a year ago.

At Pittsburgh, the river rose out of its banks at noon and was rising steadily toward a stage that would flood low lying streets.

Mayor Daniel Shields of Johnstown ordered evacuation of a small part of the Johnstown business district because of the rising waters.

Some observers here predicted a continued rise in the Conemaugh and Stony creek rivers would put the downtown area under 6 feet of water, although the river was stationary at noon after reaching a 177 foot level.

The water rolled into two sections of Vine street—just two blocks from the main business section—and also flooded parts of Nobleman and Franklin street to a depth of two feet.

More rain was predicted although officials here said they did not believe the waters would reach the disastrous point of last year's St. Patrick's day flood which took many lives.

Rivers and streams all over western Pennsylvania were running bank full and the Ohio river neared flood stage of 25 feet in Pittsburgh. The entire 600 mile watershed was deluged by rain.

Earlier Flood
Flood waters struck Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia today, barely three months after other angry waters took nearly 400 lives.

Carnegie-Illinois Ends Recognition Of Employee Groups

Washington—The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, largest of the nation's steel makers, today announced it would withdraw all recognition from its employee representation plans.

W. A. Beyer, Carnegie-Illinois counsel, told the board the company would not negotiate to this effect immediately.

This move followed the supreme court decision upholding the constitutionality of the Wagner labor disputes act. The steel workers organizing committee, John I. Lewis' C. I. O. unit in that industry, had charged Carnegie-Illinois with violation of the Wagner act. The board has held hearings on the complaint from time to time for the last four months.

Observers generally expected the board to dismiss the C. I. O. complaint after today's action.

The steel workers organizing committee, in its complaint, maintained that the employee representation plans were just "company unions" under another name.

A SOGGY JUDGMENT

At a pie baking contest before Canadian Women's Clubs the judges decided that none of the pies was of a quality to deserve a prize. Some crust, eh? Pies cost money. Those judges gave pretty short shrift to the bakers who had spent their dough. Maybe they didn't have the proper ovens or other household things that are daily sold, good though used, through a Post-Crescent classified want-ad like, like the following sold a range:

Dispute Claim of Blood Relatives To Hatten Fortune

12 Say New London Lumberman Was Adopted By Woodin Family

David M. Witherill, Birmingham, Ala., and 11 others, are contesting the claims of Illinois relatives to the estate of William H. Hatten, wealthy New London lumberman who died intestate March 30. The Hatten fortune is believed to be in excess of $1,000,000.

Blood relatives filed a petition for appointment of an administrator shortly after Mr. Hatten's death, but a new petition was filed in Waupesa county court last week by the 12 contestants who claim they are grandchildren of David M. and Harriet M. Woodin, town of Little Wolf, Waupesa county, that Mr. and Mrs. Woodin adopted Hatten in 1877 and that their claims precede those of the blood relatives.

Unless objections are raised, the two petitions will be heard jointly by County Judge A. M. Scheller, June 1.

Mrs. John Knight, Yorkville, Ill., piece of the deceased lumberman, said "We know positively Mr. Hatten never was adopted."

Other blood relatives include Mrs. Ella Hunter, 85, Chicago, sister of Hatten; Helen M. Hatten, Elmwood, Ill.; a niece; Helen, a daughter of Mrs. Knight, and a great-nephew, William Hatten, student at Lawrence college, Appleton.

Hatten, who died at 84, operated mills at New London, Wis., and Biloxi, Miss.

Patten Company May Reorganize

Hearing on Proposal Is Scheduled in Federal Court at Milwaukee

A hearing on a proposed plan for reorganization of the Patten Paper Company, Ltd., under Section 77B of the bankruptcy act will be held before federal district court at Milwaukee May 8. Creditors and stockholders of the Patten company have been informed by Paul V. Carr, trustee.

The hearing will be held "for the purpose of considering said proposed plan of reorganization and its acceptance, and any other plan of reorganization of the debtor which may be proposed and its acceptance, the division of creditors and stockholders of the debtor into classes according to the nature of their respective claims, the approval of the proposed plan and the appointment of a reorganizer which may be proposed, and all other relevant matters."

The reorganization plan includes liquidation of certain assets. Out of the amounts realized, payment would be made of all outstanding obligations of the trustee and the unpaid expenses to be fixed and determined by the court, the 1935 real estate taxes on the Appleton mill, and other obligations.

Operations Resumed At Janesville Plant

Janesville — General Motors plants here resumed normal operations this morning, following settlement of a dispute over transfer of two workers on the Chevrolet automobile line.

The 2,700 employees in Chevrolet and Fisher Body plants were sent home Friday morning when a small group on the frame line refused to work, charging discrimination in the transfers.

The agreement under which operations were resumed provides that Robert Russell, technical student, will remain on the frame line for a month "as gain experience" after which he will be transferred to the Fisher Body plant.

Clothes Stolen At Oconto Store Recovered Here

Two Men Held at Green Bay in Connection With Series of Burglaries

While Green Bay police held two men in connection with a series of burglaries in Green Bay and vicinity, the Outagamie county sheriff's department cooperated Sunday in the recovery of four suits of clothes alleged to have been stolen at the Jicha Men's store, Oconto, late last month. A radio, taken from a store about seven miles north of Green Bay, also was recovered.

Lowell Rivers, Green Bay, and Walter Whitman, DePere, both about 30, were arrested at Green Bay last week and charged with burglary of the Pastime cafe, Green Bay. Since then they have confessed nine burglaries, including the one at Oconto, according to Green Bay police.

Sheriff Charles Quirt, Oconto county, and Undersheriff Andrew Lom, Brown county, were here yesterday, assisted by Sheriff John Lappen, located four of the missing suits.

Three had been sold in the town of Grand Chute and one in Appleton, for from $3 to $5 each. Sheriff Lappen said another suit known to have been purchased by an Appleton bartender, he stated.

The radio was recovered at a tavern on the outskirts of the city. The proprietor told the sheriff he paid $10 for the machine when a man offering it for sale claimed he needed to raise money immediately because of the death of his wife.

Year's Extension for Optional Rate Schedule

Madison — Factory and shop customers of the Wisconsin Power and Light company received today a one year extension of an optional rate schedule that has prevented any increase in their power bills since 1935.

In that year the public service commission revised the company's rates, bringing about a net reduction of $4,000,000 annually. Those customers whose bills would have increased under the new schedule were given the option of continuing under their former rates.

Municipalities affected are Monroe, Lake Geneva, Tomah, Mauston, Hillsboro, Albion, Adams, Friendship and North Freedom.

Storm Warnings Again are Posted On Great Lakes

3 Freighters in Distress As Result of Weather Conditions

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. — Storm warnings were posted again today with three Great Lakes freighters still in difficulty because of last week's high winds, fog, rain and snow.

A fourth freighter, the Griffin, operated by Captain H. M. Sterling of Buffalo, N. Y., was released, apparently undamaged, last night from Major Shoals, in the straits of Mackinac, where it went aground yesterday morning.

A light wind blew early this morning along the northern coast of the lower peninsula, rain fell and a fog hung over the ship lanes. The coast guard watch at Bois Blanc station reported conditions improved but still full of potential menace to shipping. "Pretty calm this morning but it might kick up at any time," was the report at this point. "Half dozen boats blowing out there now in the fog," the watchman said. "When you can't see it's bad."

These freighters were in difficulty. The W. H. McGee ore carrier, aground off Lighthouse point, Bois Blanc, since last Wednesday. The William B. Pilkey, aground since Saturday off Port Washington, Wis., in Lake Michigan.

The William R. Linn, ore carrier, possibly ready to proceed downbound into Lake Erie today, after being beached off Detroit last week during heavy storm.

AWAIT FAVORABLE WIND. Port Washington, Wis. — Officials of the Edward E. Gillen company awaited a favorable wind to attempt to refloat the grounded freighter William B. Pilkey. Coastguard craft stood by the Pilkey as storm warning reports told of the grounding of three other freighters. The William R. Linn, in the Mackinac-Detroit straits.

The cutter Antares, backed heavy seas for two hours yesterday in an unsuccessful attempt to pull the Pilkey off the sandbar. She rammed in a heavy Lake Michigan fog Saturday.

Milwaukee tug boat line heads cooperating in attempts to free the boat said a 5,600 ton cargo of soft coal would be removed to shallow draft barges as soon as an off-shore wind of a favorable wind would float a derrick to the Pilkey.

Union Ends Strike At Ford Plant at Richmond, Calif

Settlement Reached With Discussion of Union Recognition

Richmond, Calif. — (AP) — Union workmen went back to their jobs at the Richmond assembly plant of the Ford Motor company today, ending a strike that started Friday.

A settlement of differences, which involved union charges of discrimination against members of the United Automobile Workers and refusal by the plant management to meet with employee-appointed shop stewards, was reached yesterday.

Ford officials from Detroit, Mich., flew here and conferred with U. A. W. leaders, including Ed Hall, W. A. W. vice president, who also came from Detroit.

After the conference, Hall announced: "An understanding has been reached as to the relationship of the grievance committee to the management and has been accepted by both sides."

Union spokesmen avoided answering questions as to union recognition, which Henry Ford said he would never grant.

Hall added that "grievances between employee and employer will be negotiated between shop stewards and the local plant management."

The shop stewards' committee comprises only employees in the plant, it was announced.

The agreement provided there shall be no discrimination on union affiliation or union activities and that seniority rights will be recognized, Hall said.

Workers closed the plant Friday afternoon by a sit-down strike which lasted 11 hours. Six hundred men who had remained in the plant, marched out after their leaders said they had received assurances from the management the dispute could be settled.

Yesterday pickets remained in front of the plant until their leaders came out of the conference.

A. C. Bulwinkle, plant manager, said maintenance and unloading crews would resume work in the afternoon. He said full production would be under way Tuesday.

Rival Labor Groups Seeking Recognition

Pittsburgh — (AP) — The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company was confronted today with a demand from the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America that it be recognized as the sole bargaining agency for the company's 47,000 workers.

The United is an affiliate of the John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization. For two weeks officials of both it and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, an adjunct of the American Federation of Labor, have been negotiating with Westinghouse for a collective bargaining agreement.

James Carey, 25-year-old president of the United, said the demand was made in a resolution adopted unanimously by union delegates from New York, Bridgeport, Conn.; Philadelphia; Mansfield, Ohio; Chicago; Bloomfield, N. J.; Springfield, Mass.; and Detroit, Hamilton, Ont., and Essington, Pa., last night.

Three Scout Leaders At Training Course

Walter G. Dixon, Valley Council scout executive, George Klein, scoutmaster of troop 1, and Harold Williams, assistant camp director at Gardner dam, attended the regional aquatics training course at Madison Saturday and Sunday. Lewis Hall, assistant national aquatics leader, was in charge of the session.

All demonstrations were held in the University of Wisconsin swimming pool. Main topics considered were: How to teach swimming, life saving, operation of an effective waterfront at camp, practical methods of rescue and use of rescue equipment, artificial respiration.

City Officials Attend Legislative Meeting

Hoeftel and Alderman Robert De Land member of the common council legislative committee, are attending a legislative meeting of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities today at Madison. Proposed laws affecting cities are being studied to determine the league's position on them. Hearings on bills relating to municipalities are being held at Madison this week.

Contractors Give Reply to Efforts Of Trade Council

Protest Against Methods Used by Building Group To Gain 'Closed Shop'

Appleton building contractors today replied to efforts of the Appleton Building Trades council to force them into a "closed shop" agreement by filing the first of what they said would be a series of protests from the individual divisions of the building trades to the Building Trades Council. Twenty-seven men signed the protest which expresses the opposition of the Appleton Association of Mason Contractors to efforts of the council to gain the agreement.

The Building Trades council declared a 2-day holiday last Monday and Tuesday to force the contractors to sign the agreement.

Groups of men in construction projects last Monday and invited union and non-union workers to join the general walkout. Construction ceased on Monday and four contractors resumed work on Tuesday, while others continued the holiday.

Meeting at the Trades and Labor hall Tuesday night, the executive board of the council called for a vote of the workmen present and it was decided to call a strike. Since then union workers have refused to use materials, merchandise and commodities hauled by non-union truck drivers.

Expect More Protests. A spokesman for the Committee on Building Progress said this morning that the other divisions of the building trades are expected to file their protests later today and tomorrow.

The petitions of protest were circulated Thursday, Friday and Saturday after a meeting of the contractors who were opposed to the Building Trades council's methods. The Committee on Building Progress is composed of 10 contractors, representing five divisions of the building trades.

Mason contractors who were opposed to the methods used by the council used the following protest: "We, the undersigned, mason contractors and dealers, engaged in furnishing labor and material or both on construction in this vicinity, located and doing business in Appleton, Wisconsin, and surrounding territory, hereby protest against the methods used by the Appleton Building Trades council or Building Alliance, in attempting to force us to sign an agreement."

"We are opposed to entering into any agreement with the Appleton Trades council, its executive council or its business agent, representative or organizer, Earl Clark."

Government Pays Little Attention To "Small" Items

Lawrence Hits Recommendation for Funds to Investigate Utilities

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—The old saying that if you take care of the pennies, the dollars will take care of themselves may still mean something to the people who work for a living in America, but it is beginning to be the most obsolete expression in the whole vocabulary of the administration.

Volunteers might be written on how money is wasted in Washington on useless activities, but the trouble is most everybody concentrates on the big items so that, when an appropriation for a few thousands comes up or even for a sizeable fraction of a million dollars, there is a sort of free and easy attitude which implies that, of course, there is plenty of money for these "small" items.

A case in point is the recommendation by a committee last week that $150,000 be appropriated to authorize the Federal Trade Commission to investigate the public utilities and what they have been doing to fight public ownership.

For seven years—from 1929 to 1936—the Federal Trade Commission investigated and issued periodical reports on how bad the utilities were. Every phase of utility "propaganda" and efforts "to control public opinion" were thoroughly probed, so that, if there is anything bad about the utilities which hasn't been brought to light, it was certainly due to an oversight which nobody has yet pointed out.

Findings Publicized
What is more, the commission's findings were thoroughly publicized, so that a considerable portion of the American people now believe the utilities are financial pirates and what not. The people who still think that maybe the utilities did accomplish something with the money they borrowed from the public and that maybe they did do something constructive in an engineering sense are not likely to be affected by any more federal trade commission reports.

As for the utilities, everybody knows that, when the "death sentence" came up in congress, they fought for their lives just as any criminal would have a right to do. There is certainly no news in the fact that the utilities do not like public ownership and that they have been trying to influence public opinion against the use of public funds to destroy their businesses. If they didn't fight such tactics on the part of the government, their stockholders would be justified in firing the executives of the public utility companies and getting somebody else to protect their investments.

Why, it might be asked, after seven years of study, is it desired to revive and continue the persecution of the utility companies? Certainly, if it was really important to uncover anything that has not before been uncovered, it would be much more economical to offer a prize of reward of $5,000 for anybody in the United States who could reveal anything bad about the utilities which the previous investigations and sundry volumes of printed reports by the Federal Trade Commission have not revealed. This would save about $145,000 out of the $150,000 about to be appropriated.

See More Strength
The truth of the matter is that the new investigation is sought as a means of strengthening the hand of those who want to go into local situations and make a case for the destruction of the business of the local power companies so that more requests will come for money from the PWA to help build municipal ownership plants as a threat to the existing companies. Unless there is more of a demand for the use of power from municipalities, the big federal power projects, like the TVA, will not find it easy to justify their existence throughout the country.

So the taxpayers are about to be asked to spend $150,000 to help destroy a $12,000,000 industry which has in it the makings of a constructive program this very year for the reemployment of workmen and the purchase of much durable goods. If the purpose of the investigation is to tell congress something it needs to know in order to write future legislation—that's the official excuse for all investigations—somebody might also offer another prize of a few thousand dollars to learn what has been omitted from the present public utility holding company act, passed a year ago, that should have been included.

Have Vast Powers
The "death sentence" for holding companies is in the law notwithstanding the desperate efforts of the utility companies to eliminate it, and so are to be found in the statute vast powers over the utility industry by the federal power commission and the securities and exchange commission, which have authority themselves to conduct continuing investigations.

Then there's another authorization of about $3,000,000 for a memorial to Thomas Jefferson. For many decades, the memory of President Jefferson has remained imperishable in the minds of his countrymen. His memory can wait just a few years more to be canonized by admiring citizens, certainly until there's a balanced budget and the period of monuments for what the fathers of our country did or said takes on more reverence and significance than it appears to have today.

But what, after all, is $3,000,000? It's only about one per cent of the average annual deficits these days which have been running around $3,000,000,000. So perhaps to be up to date, the saying of pre-Roosevelt days will have to be revised to read: "If you take care of the millions, the billions will take care of themselves."

Strike Started By Employees of Konz Box Plant

Seek Union Recognition And Eventual In- crease in Wages

Union employees of the Konz Box and Lumber company went on strike this morning for union recognition and eventual increase in wages. Officials of the company stated that they were asked to recognize the union but that no mention had been made of a wage increase.

Picketing was started this morning at the plant and operations were stopped. Strikers said they would continue picketing 24 hours a day. The employees are members of Coopers' union, local No. 46, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor.

Company officials said they would not recognize the union until the entire industry is organized under present conditions which would be unable to meet competition. They also said that they have given two wage increases since the first of the year.

Striking workers said they are seeking an average wage increase of 12 cents per hour in addition to union recognition.

Book Objectable to Duke Ordered Withdrawn

London.—Newspapers reported today that "Coronation Commentary," the book to which the duke of Windsor's lawyer objected had been withdrawn.

A. G. Allen, counsel for the former British monarch, had threatened to seek an injunction against the publishers today, and insisted on a complete withdrawal of the book.

Asked whether the book had been withdrawn, the publishers William Heinemann, Ltd., said only:

"We have nothing to say except that the book is out of print."

They declined to disclose whether a new edition was planned.

"Coronation Commentary" accused the former king of "muddling fudding and meddling" when he was on the throne and mentioned reports that Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin had other grievances against him than his insistence on marrying Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson.

New York.—Disregarding threats by the duke of Windsor to sue for libel, Dean Moad and Company, publishers, today decided to release the American edition of "Coronation Commentary."

The decision to release a controversial book, threatened by the duke of Windsor, was made after a conference of the officials of the publishing company.

Turkey Is Moving Toward New Order Missionary Says

Many Changes Have Occurred in Country Since World War

"No major problem of the world today can be solved in one country," said Luther R. Fowle, Istanbul, Turkey, who spoke at the morning service Sunday at First Congregational church.

The world is at the boiling point, said the speaker, comparing it to a huge kettle of mush which is disturbed by bubbles bursting up and through and finally causing the pot to boil over. Pointing out that there are new forces at work in the present social life, Mr. Fowle said that the "New Turkish Republic is like other countries moving toward a new order. Stating that Turkey is a bridge between Europe and Asia, between the ancient and the new, he told how Turkey has been swept by the armies, religions and the philosophies of the world.

The Hebrew faith came out of this land that is now Turkey, he went on, and early Christianity made its start there. Turkey has given to the world a rich heritage of sculpture, art, science, he said, the renaissance in Europe having been a transference of Asiatic culture from that region into Europe.

Speaking of the attitude of Turkey toward Christianity, Mr. Fowle said that Islam despised Christianity for the reason that the religion of the Byzantine Empire was the religion of the conqueror, and for centuries the area was overrun with crusades that brought the sword, javelin, fire, hate—a travesty on the teachings of Jesus.

"It is we Christians that are responsible for the Moslem hatred against Christians," Mr. Fowle stated.

But, he pointed out, Turkey today is adopting the practices of the Western world, is shaping its legal, national, civic and educational policies after the better things of the Christian nations.

"This once-tried race is trying to live in peace and to reform itself," said the speaker.

Mr. Fowle talked to Lawrence college students at convocation this morning.

Ohio Boy Helps Catch Escaped U. S. Prisoner

Lancaster, Ohio.—(AP)—Robert Schaefer, 8 years old, refused to talk today of his part in the capture yesterday of Owen Bickel, 17, of Cincinnati, Ohio, an escaped federal prisoner.

The boy limited his remarks to "I never thought I could catch a real prisoner."

Police Chief Gail Sessler said the youth's feat probably would be given formal recognition of some kind.

Robert went to a back yard play-house which he and a playmate, Jack Houser, 7, use as a "jail" while playing and found Bickel hiding there.

Spurning a dollar bill offered to "keep quiet," Robert dashed out and told patrolman Harley Higley that he had captured a prisoner.

Harley said Bickel escaped a few hours earlier from an automobile in which United States Deputy Marshall Edward Michener was transporting him from Pittsburgh to the federal reformatory in Chillicothe.

18 Are Arrested as Strikers Quit Plant

Detroit.—(AP)—Several hundred strikers evacuated the Packard and Co. plant this afternoon after holding several departments of the pharmaceutical factory since 8 a. m. Eighteen of the strikers were detained for investigation.

Most of the strikers left peacefully when 200 uniformed police and 50 detectives entered the plant.

Police said, however, that one small group of men who had barricaded a door leading to a sixth floor department where a $2,000,000 stock of narcotics was stored turned a fire hose on a police detachment, including high ranking police officials. The arrests were made after that clash.

Spikes Door Shut To Win Payment

Tomahawk, Wis.—(AP)—Stanley Wajack, Antigo contractor, used a spike to pin down his employer on the question of wages.

While putting a new stove front in a tavern building, Wajack asked for some pay from the owner, George Karam Wajack said he was refused.

Thereupon, Wajack drove a spike through the door, keeping out patrons, and sat down to await developments. Karam called a lawyer who pulled out the spike, so Wajack called a lawyer who placed a lien and foreclosed on the building, Karam paid.

'Magician' Gets Ready To Feed 30,000 Scouts

Washington.—(AP)—It was all very nice to think of getting 30,000 boy scouts together in Washington during June for an international jamboree.

But boys have a way of bringing their appetites with them when they travel. And how many eggs do 30,000 stomachs need for breakfast?

How many gallons of water does it take to wash 30,000 chins afterwards? And how in thunder do you get eggs and water to boys living in tent villages all over the parks in Washington?

Washington merchants were pretty well stumped by the problem until the scouts sent on their magic worker, Harvey Gordon.

Lining Up Supplies
Gordon, whose office is in New York, is known by the unromantic name of director of engineering for the scouts.

He arrived here three months ahead of the jamboree and is rapidly bringing order out of chaos.

He's signing up chickens as far south as Richmond for the 70,000 eggs he'll need for each breakfast. And the cows that will supply the 30,000 quarts of milk a day stretch back into Pennsylvania.

He has engineers drawing stacks of blueprints to pump the 1,000,000 gallons of water into the tent colonies for drinking and bathing.

250 Cooks
There will be 25 big kitchens running full blast. 250 cooks perspiring. 250 tons of food daily moving into the scout towns along the Potomac.

Those tons break up into such unimaginable quantities as 900 bushels of potatoes for one meal, 15,000 pounds of bread a day, 30,000 quarts of milk a day, 4,000 pounds of sugar and the makings for 100,000 flapjacks for one breakfast (and please cooks have been taken to the hospital).

Gordon, who is a scout himself, had charge of the meals at the London jamboree in 1929 and everything went along fine, even if it does sound confusing.

The confusion will be taken out of the picture by Gordon's three dispatchers who work in 8-hour shifts around the clock.

They will sit at a big wooden table, littered with telephones connected with the 25 kitchens and the city's food wholesalers. They'll keep big charts, one for each kitchen.

Keep Tab By Phones
At dawn, the phones will start ringing with messages like this: "Milk beginning to move—eggs on the road—sugar leaving the warehouse."

For a few minutes the dispatcher can sit cozily imagining the trucks on the road, and then the phones will start all over again with: "Kitchen No. 1 reporting milk arrival—Kitchen No. 12 reporting coffee coming in—Kitchen No. 9. Sir, eggs have arrived." And so on, until every kitchen has every item scheduled for that day's breakfast.

Naturally Gordon isn't planning to feed the whole 30,000 at just 25 kitchens. Those 25 are merely the cooking and dispatching points that will send hot food to the 816 small kitchens and dining tents that will be set up.

Dinah will blow no horn when meal-time arrives. Instead a flag will run up at the 25 kitchens. Each troop will send two scouts to the nearest kitchen. Those two will stagger back to their troop village with a sort of metal coffin holding four containers of hot food. Back in their own small kitchen they'll dish out the individual plates. And 30,000 of those elastic caverns in boys' mid-dies will stop growling for another short while.

ed its twenty-fifth annual convention today.

The officials said a shift by many corporations from the calendar year to a fiscal year in their accounting practices might be a large factor in the drop of March tax receipts below estimates.

President Roosevelt cited that March income tax receipts were $140,000,000 under estimates.

Encouraging to advocates of budget balancing was the federal reserve board's report for March, showing factory pay rolls advanced 5.4 per cent. The board said industrial production advanced 2 points to 115, based on a 1923-26 index of 100.

The end of senate hearings quickened congressional interest in the president's supreme court proposal. The senate judiciary committee will begin consideration of it tomorrow in closed sessions.

Talk of compromise persisted, but there were no signs one was likely in the near future.

Conferees on neutrality legislation tried again to get together on differences in the bills passed by the senate and house.

The senate civil liberties committee, inquiring into alleged disregard for workers' rights in the Harlan county, Ky., coal fields, summoned additional witnesses.

Workers Vote to Drop From Union

Stevens Point Company Denies Suggesting Move by Men

Stevens Point.—(AP)—August Matke, union grievance committee chairman, announced today employees of the Stevens Point furniture company voted to drop out of a local furniture union whose membership includes Folding Furniture workers.

"We have made no statement at any time with reference to our employees' joining any union," F. C. Joerns, vice president of the company said. "Several of them asked us how we felt about it and told them it was a personal problem with them."

Joerns said wages have been increased three years in succession and were 26 per cent higher than they were in 1929.

The strike at the Lullabye plant continued while union and company officials and an employees' bargaining committee met with N. S. Clark, regional director of the national labor relations board, in Milwaukee to discuss points of dispute.

Garage Renter Need Not Fear Alligators

Chicago.—(AP)—Oak Park police hunted today for a stranger who rented a garage from Mrs. Ethel Aldrich.

They wanted to tell him he might return and put his car in the garage without fear of two hungry alligators which snatched their paws at him when he opened the garage doors for the first time yesterday. The renter has not been seen since.

The alligators, it seems, were the property of the son of the former owner of the garage. Police claimed them for the time being.

U. S. Fleet Moves Into Pearl Harbor Anchorage

Honolulu.—(AP)—The United States fleet moved into anchorage at Pearl harbor, Hilo and Lahaina roads today after 48 hours of the most extensive army and navy concurrent exercises ever held in the Hawaiian area.

Forty thousand men and officers participating in the maneuvers are taking four days of rest before starting six weeks of major sea action.

Rear Admiral W. T. Cluverius, ranking officer at Pearl harbor, observed "the defense forces gave us a whole of a time," and added "we watched with admiration the work of their airplanes."

The attack on the Hawaiian islands began Friday.

The armada anchored yesterday at Oahu, attempting to land imaginary troops to march on Pearl harbor. Army troops, giant naval flying patrol boats and submarines cooperated in the defense.

Report Soviet Plan Is Far Ahead of Schedule

Moscow.—(AP)—Russia's second five-year plan, the government asserted today, has been fulfilled far ahead of schedule.

It was to end at the close of this year, when a third five-year plan is to be started. An official announcement said, however, industry equaled its goal of producing goods worth 85,000,000,000 rubles by April 1 and that the railway program was surpassed Jan. 1.

The industrial output figure is equivalent to about $17,000,000,000 at the official rate of 3.35 rubles to the dollar.

Details of the achievements were not disclosed. The announcement contracted with Russian newspaper reports that many branches of industry—particularly the coal industry—have fallen behind schedule because of the activities of wreckers.

HEALTH SERVICE

The first part of this article naturally deals with the subjects which concerns one's philosophy of life. The writer recognizes great variations in thought on this subject. If objections be raised the reader is at perfect liberty to formulate his own theory to conform with the d e m o n s t r a t i o n of the fact of the existence of the practice of Chiropactic. I am sure, however, that the points maintained in this article are beyond successful contradiction. It is my sincere wish to arouse more interest in the science of Chiropactic and make it possible for more people to enjoy its wonderful benefits. The Panneck Chiropactic Clinic is premised upon the service idea of getting sick people well as soon as possible, thus reducing the cost of being sick. Here Chiropactic in its purest and highest stage of development is used. Sick people come here, hoping they want to live, yet they think it next to impossible. These people come here given up, they were problem cases and have been restored to health in this Clinic under my personal supervision. Days pass and gradually life returns, function is restored, and now they thrill at living. We present different cases to show how severe some of them could be and get well.

Roosevelt Frowns On Speculation by Federal Employees

Washington.—(AP)—President Roosevelt came out today against stock speculation by government employees.

In a letter made public at the White House, which the president sent April 22 to Harry B. Mitchell, president of the civil service commission, Mr. Roosevelt said he believed it to be sound policy that no officer or employee of the government shall participate "directly or indirectly in the purchase or sale of corporate stocks or bonds or of commodities." "For speculative purposes as distinguished from bona fide investment purposes."

He added that engagement in such activities, whether the employee is in the civil service, or not, should be one of the qualifications considered by the commission for retention or advancement of employees.

He asked Mitchell to make his position known throughout the government service.

WORLD LEADER?

The British government has decided to do a little promotion work, and accordingly British statesmen have started a series of ten highly moral pep talks to the Empire. Prime Minister Baldwin opened the series the other evening, addressing Britons throughout the world from his country home, "Chequers." It was, as you might say, "his move."

The nations all need leadership, he proclaimed, and continued modestly:

"No one country, no group of countries, is so qualified to provide that leadership as the British Empire, of which it has been well said: 'Free institutions are its lifeblood; free cooperation is its instrument; peace, security and progress are among its objects.'"

"And I say this without any idea that we are necessarily better than other people, but because of our experience; for we peoples of the empire in our relations with one another have set an example of mutual cooperation in the solution of our problems such as I believe no group of nations have ever before achieved."

It is true. The scattered British nations do get along wonderfully with their system of loose cooperation; and if this tolerant and intelligent system had been in existence under a certain former King George, who knows but that our own country might be today the leading member of the federation?

In the matter of international relations, however, the British government lately hasn't been so happy. To most American observers, the present government at London seems to have drifted aimlessly with regard to Geneva, Germany, Ethiopia, Spain and other foreign problems, not even muddling along in her usual fashion, but just muddling. That is, except for her rearmament gesture, which has done much to restore her prestige again in Europe.

AUTOCRATIC FALLACY

"What is democracy?" asks Premier Mussolini oratorically, in a recent interview. "If democracy means a government for the greatest good of the greatest number of people, then the Italy of today is the greatest democracy. Our system is not only conceived, but actually functions, to promote the welfare and happiness of the people. Those so-called democracies whose submerged tenth are left to shift for themselves have no right to throw stones at us."

The statement looks fine until you start taking it to pieces. Is it actually true that Fascism in Italy or Germany is promoting the welfare and happiness of the people as the dictators say it is? If half the reports of trustworthy foreign observers, including our own, are true, the people are worse off materially in the Fascist countries than they are in the free countries. And what of their "submerged tenth," or whatever the fraction is, in the concentration camps or in exile for rebellion against tyranny?

But the worst thing about autocracy is not its material damage; it is the way autocratic tyranny kills the human spirit and the self-respect and individual competence of its citizens. The glory of democracies is the self-respect and personal enterprise of their people. They believe it is better to be free, though poor, than to be enslaved with plenty. And this is something that dictators cannot understand.

ANOTHER DEMOCRACY

Venezuela, a little more than a year after the death of Gomez, dictator for 25 years, is slowly restoring the democratic processes of government. In the congress which met recently, one-third of the members were elected by the people as their representatives. The other two-thirds are members who were appointed by Gomez.

During the present year, Municipal Councils will be elected entirely by the people. They, in turn, will elect congressmen to replace the dictator's appointees. If all goes well in these initial steps toward self-government, there will follow certain changes in the laws set up by the absolute government of Gomez.

Revision of the agricultural and industrial programs is expected. A foreign loan may be sought. Venezuela at present has no foreign debt. Various government monopolies will be brought to an end.

Many of the newly elected members of congress are extreme radicals. Their choice was doubtless a natural reaction against the years of rule by the dictator's hand-picked conservatives. They may make trouble if reforms do not come fast enough to suit them. It is obviously a complicated and difficult business, with the present administration proceeding cautiously toward the establishment of popular government. Other democracies will wish Venezuela success and lend her moral support, at least.

INDUSTRIAL SUCCESS

After the first get-together conference of the leaders of capital and labor in Secretary Perkins' office at Washington, Miss Perkins gave out this statement:

"Both sides have agreed to observe collective bargaining contracts as sacred and binding, and have agreed to recommend the same attitude to their associates."

"Secondly, they have agreed that labor's success in bettering itself by collective bargaining should be fitted into the pattern of success for industry."

That first paragraph is reassuring. The second is not clear. It means, we suppose, that if labor benefits by collective bargaining, industry also should benefit from it. It would not be a very far-fetched conclusion. Industrial workers are not only producers; they are a very large class of industry's consumers. If they attain orderly prosperity, their buying should enlarge the markets, and perhaps the profits, of their employers.

This might not be true in a particular industry, but it should be true of industry in general, economists argue, if order, stability and liberal wages prevailed.

TRAVEL TRADE

American travelers to Europe are credited by officials of the Cunard White Star line with putting that steamship company once more in the black. They constitute the line's principal source of revenue. Results have amply justified construction of the giant liner Queen Mary.

The company's profit in 1936 amounted to more than $2,500,000, a pleasant change from the 1935 deficit of more than $500,000.

All Europe is beginning to be aware of the resumption of travel on a big scale. The thousands of tourists no longer concentrate on a few favored foreign areas, but now spread themselves over nearly every country on the map, great or small. Incidentally, more Europeans now visit us.

When other foreign trade revives as tourist trade is reviving, the outlook for prosperity and peace will improve on both sides of the Atlantic.

A NEIGHBOR WARMS UP

Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine Commonwealth, who has been visiting this country and Mexico, seems to like both. He pays warm tribute to President Gardenas and his administration, and adds:

"In my short visit to Mexico I have found that a great change has taken place in the attitude of the Mexican people toward the United States. The former suspicion and dislike that the Mexicans had for Americans have disappeared, and have been replaced by a feeling of confidence and affection."

This is pleasant to hear. And perhaps it can be said truthfully that our own people are reciprocating the Mexican sentiment. Intelligent and unprejudiced Americans visiting Mexico, as our people are doing in large numbers lately, usually like them, in spite of what has been done about various American property rights. They are courteous and charming to strangers. And as they get better acquainted with us, they like us better.

Neighborly friendliness is, of course, a thing that works both ways.

Opinions Of Others

DANGEROUS COMPETITION
The conditions set down for the Lindbergh Memorial air race over the Atlantic from New York to Paris have been modified by the French air ministry to meet the considerable opposition which has developed to the original plan. It was proposed to hold the race May 20, the tenth anniversary of Lindbergh's great feat, and this regardless of the weather. The new condition will permit the contestants to take off at any time in August.

The project is still one to be looked at with grave misgiving. A race of this kind without a casualty is asking too much of luck, and a repetition of the ill-fated Dole Derby at this point would do the sore-bested commercial side of aviation a poor service. The ministry promoting the race is setting up a purse of three million francs, which comes to around $149,000, and while the profits that accrue from this sort of publicity are largely immaterial, the sponsors evidently think them important, as others have before.

It is a question whether government everywhere could not contribute more to the progress of aviation and the industry that has grown up around it by bending every available resource to greater safety in the air. There is a growing feeling that our Commerce department is not up to scratch in this regard. At any rate, a loss of life in a mad scramble across the sea would be a poor memorial to the Lindbergh flight, which was no more a result of audacity for flying in the fiercest conditions than every little detail that made for safety and a taking of every precaution against failure.—Detroit News.

Tests at the Oklahoma A. and M. College experiment station in 1936 proved that calcium arsenate is an effective insecticide for controlling the cotton leaf worm.

Watermelon plants, in all stages, are subject to attacks by fusarium wilt, a wilt disease that enters through root tips and ruptures formed by new lateral roots.

WHEN DID THIS HAPPEN?

Jonah—
Two child Labor acts have been passed by congress by a practically unanimous vote and both were torpedoed by the supreme court. One of the court judges, who voted against the validity of both acts, recently remarked that opponents of the court are not "good losers." I describe the "good losers" this way—

This is little Johnnie's grave
He was just a factory slave
Grasses gently o'er him wave
He was a "good loser."

Little Mary lies here now
For-get-me-nots wave o'er her brow
She is up with the angels now
She was a "good loser."

Many children die in vain
We can't bring them back again
We can sing the sad refrain
They have been "good Losers."

—Ezekiel Sodbuster

Ezekiel has the makings of another Senator Joe Robinson who, not so long ago, emoted heavily about the suffering children, the flower of whose youth was being crushed by Demon Industry. Back home in the senator's Arkansas, a 99-44-100% pure New Deal dependent, child labor at its worst can be found.

Ezekiel, in blaming the Supreme court, reminds me of a guy who crabs because the umpire calls him out after three strikes have sailed past him. If the rules of baseball were changed to four strikes, the umpire would call 'em that way.

The right of women to vote, of congress to regulate liquor, and other such issues, were not within the right of congress until the constitution was amended to say so. Which, of course, took the matter out of the Supreme court's hands.

Meanwhile, the proposed child labor amendment—which saw the first light of day under, oddly enough, the Hoover administration, has been taking quite a lacing at the hands of New Deal states. Some have found the law dangerously phrased, others really don't give a hoot how long or under what conditions the kids work. States which have been, and will again be, Republican, were quite prompt to ratify the amendment.

And where did you get those verses, Zeke? They have a vaguely familiar ring that suggests quotation marks.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

PORTRAIT OF A LADY

Her soul was not made strong by tragedy;
Rather the constant pin-pricks of the years,
The fret of scrambled domesticity,
Lack of security, the lesser fears,
Like locusts swarm above her, to bescloud
A vision ever glorious and proud.

It would have been far easier to rise
From one hard blow than to be set upon
By thousands of small troubles . . . but her eyes
Are still as clear as when, in her life's dawn,
She buckled the stout armor of her faith
Around a heart that will be staunch in death.

Nothing can trample her brave soul to dust.
Still she will thrust her green leaves to the sun,
And cover every scar, as brave trees must,
Lifting her tired arms high, when life is done;
Thankful for sunshine, grateful for the rain,
And strong enough to bear the winds of pain.

THE MODERN TREATMENT OF SYPHILIS

Article Number Seven
Two things every one should know, whether he ever has syphilis or not: First, that a reputable physician never betrays or divulges any secret he may learn in his professional capacity; and second, a good doctor is not concerned about ethics or morals but only with the physical welfare or health of his patient.

The general experience of physicians in this country and abroad has proved that the most effective treatment for syphilis consists of about sixty injections of arsenamine (a refinement of the famous "606" introduced by Ehrlich in 1910) given at intervals of a week or so, usually into the arm vein. In courses alternating with injections of bismuth into the deep muscle back of the hip at intervals of five to seven days, about 60 of these hip injections being given, all in a period of 60 or 65 weeks.

Experience has shown that no less treatment than this can be relied upon to cure. Even the untreated or inadequately treated, syphilis in some instances may seem to be cured, that is, the chancre may heal and disappear and the secondary rash and mucous patches may clear up, but unless the cure is substantiated by Wassermann or other blood tests or spinal fluid tests or both, relapse or more serious manifestations of the disease are likely to occur months or years later.

The third stage of syphilis is the stage of gumma, nodular growth which may occur in any part of the body, the surface gumma which leads to ulceration being the least dangerous situation. In this stage syphilis is only slightly contagious if at all.

It is to prevent the occurrence of gumma, and especially involvement of the nervous system in this third stage or a later stage of syphilis that vigorous, unrelenting treatment in the first and second stage is so important.

This still being a health column, believe it or not, we need not mention the specific diseases of brain or spinal cord which may be late manifestations of syphilis. Suffice to say that the patient who contemplates discontinuing treatment without consent of his physician, just because the chancre and the secondary rash and mucous patches have cleared up, had better think again while he can think rationally.

There ought to be a penalty of a few years in prison for any drug clerk, "friend" or other unqualified person who prescribes medicine, salve or any remedy whatever for a dimwit who fears he has a chancre or the first stage of syphilis. Many of the most tragic cases of syphilis of brain, spinal cord or vital organ have such malpractice at the beginning.

Where any one has no physician and does not know a reputable, reliable one, it is generally advisable to call the information bureau of the local county medical society, the health department or any large hospital and ask for the name of a good physician. He should never take the chance of putting himself in the clutches of a "specialist" who foists himself on the public or seeks patronage thru self-promotion.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Insanity in Family
Girl's mother was in state hospital, now in private sanitarium for mental cases. The insanity started after birth of the eldest of three children. The girl I expect to marry was the second child. Is insanity liable to show up in children we may have? (T. P.)
Answer—Data insufficient to base opinion on. Question of equal concern to girl and yourself. Go together to physician who knows mother's condition and ask his opinion.

No Symptoms to Try On
X-rays taken in laboratory found to be negative, but physician started treatment on high acid content. . . . What symptoms go stomach ulcers present? (Mrs. H. C.)

Your Birthday
"TACRUS"
If April 27 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 to 11:15 a. m. and from 1:15 to 3:15 p. m. and from 7:15 to 9:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:15 to 9:15 a. m., from 9:15 to 7:15 p. m. and from 9:15 to 11:15 p. m.

Some concerted movement on the part of several people will prove helpful to you this day. Temperance with tact, if you do not wish to become unpopular before the day passes. Be sure to express your appreciation in no uncertain terms for kindnesses or favors done for you this day, because there is danger of people thinking the average person is lacking in it during the next twenty-four hours. This is a day when love will find a way to bring a great amount of happiness into individual lives. Avoid discussing topics involving religious or political views this day, if you wish to run no risk of quarreling. Regard things in a thoroughly practical way, for many things of an infeasible nature are likely to crop up and cause losses in time and money. Married and engaged couples, as well as those ready to elope their throats, might do well to remember "that walls have ears." If they have any exchange of confidences to make.

If a woman and April 27 is your birthday, you are probably very suspicious. Overcome this trait, for it can cause you a lot of unhappiness. An unusually honest disposition may make you too outspoken. A little sugar coating makes many a disagreeable thing palatable, and it might be well for you to bear this in mind. You ought to become prosperous, for conditions surrounding your financial prospects

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—If ever your visit to Washington falls on you, take an hour off from your survey of the gold crested department of justice building and watch the house make laws.

Never was there a place more given over to frank, unalloyed disorder than the house when it sets out to debate a serious bill.

They don't talk to persuade the opposition, and anyway the opposition probably is out in the corridor smoking a cigaret. They bellow their views into "The Congressional Record" where their constituents may read them, although were it not for the competing din all constituents as far west as Duluth might very well hear them while completing the spring plowing.

Rules Bar Filibusters
At the same moment the member from Georgia cries out in agony against loss of state's rights in the anti-lynch bill, a half dozen of his fellows 10 yards up the aisle will throw back their heads in a guffaw at the latest rebels wheeze.

Astute house managers have woven a network of rules to trap any rebellious clique which might be tempted to start a runaway filibuster. So this weapon of minorities, available in the senate, is easily curbed in the house.

Yet for almost every rule seeking to limit the number and duration of speeches there are outlets, like air holes in the ice, through which submerged congressmen can blow a public bubble. Unless the house managers slap down the rule prohibiting amendments, a congressman can add his own voice to the general hubbub by proposing an amendment, upon which he and a few associates can speak five minutes each.

Master Control

To a reader of the record the amount of copy that a speaker can cram into a five-minute speech is simply bewildering. But that is taken care of in another manner. At the end of five minutes of speaking the member simply picks up his pages, mutters something about "privilege to extend my remarks," and hands the whole hour-long text of the speech to the reporter who obligingly inserts it in the record, lock, stock and barrel. Once there, it can be run off in multiplied number by the government printer for mailing to the voters.

But underneath the boiling disorder there is a master-work of control and when the minute arrives for the 400-odd congressmen to make up their minds on the fate of the nation the speaker slaps down his gavel, even though it crashes in the midst of a split infinitive.

Then in true cast-meeting style the members stand to be counted. The raise or no, lessened but the speaking ended.

advised that he has photographed more than 300,000 women in some 15 years of steady camera-clicking. These have been girls from night clubs, lasses in cigaret ads, maids in lingerie, young women in the movies and everywhere else.

From this experience Korman has deduced this grain of philosophy: "Beauty is a career and a beautiful woman who undrapes is merely building up her career. A man who owns a fine yacht is proud of it, isn't he? A woman with a wealth of natural beauty is no different. She too is proud."

He thinks, too, that the exhibition of such beauty is as much art as is an exhibition of famous paintings—or a monument, or a castle.

"You see, art is an endeavor through composition to charm the senses. Real feminine beauty, proudly, graciously displayed, achieves this."

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Murray Korman thinks the current harvest of Park avenue debas will have to hurry if they are to catch up, in romantic interest, with the coterie of biddies who roam Broadway. Over a kipped herring at Lindsay's this famed White Line photographer put it this way:

"I don't know how it is, but the girls on Broadway get cuter each year. They're smarter, brainier, and they dress with more dash and style. Look at that girl there." He indicated an ingenue who had walked in on the arm of some local swain, and you caught at a glance just what Korman meant. She was a flash of resplendent color.

"What Park avenue needs," continued Herr Korman, spearing a crisp dorsal fish, "is a stage director, and better lighting effects. Those kids haven't a chance against actresses and girls who dance in the night clubs—that is, in making impressions on the marriageable lads. They're trained, apt performers. They know stance, style, verve. They know how to pace a situation."

It didn't take much nosing about to know that he was led into these solemn cogitations by the recent uproar over pictures of Heloise Martin, the Drake college co-ed and ex-show girl, taken in a college shower and in the arms of a campus hero.

The girl on the stage is following a script. When she steps off stage she keeps right on acting. She can do things a girl on Park avenue, or Cadillac Row, doesn't know about. What if she does show a leg or reveal a tempting curve or so: she's just as modest, really, as girls of 10 or 15 years ago. As I get it, the difference is that she has acquired glamor. The girl on the other side of town knows only what the fashion books tell her. Just on the odd chance you may think Master Korman doesn't know what he is talking about, he Madison—From the deep south Justice Joseph Martin, Green Bay member of the state supreme court, recently received congratulations on his triumph over Glenn Turner, Socialist, and Fred M. Wylie, Progressive, in the election two weeks ago in which he was returned to the court for a ten year term.

The New Orleans item viewed with satisfaction Turner's third successive defeat, and added that "anybody who, after taking the judge's oath, says he won't declare a law unconstitutional when it is clearly so beyond all reasonable doubt, is morally warped as well as mentally eccentric."

The Wisconsin court is famed nationally for the character and competence of its members, the paper continued, and Justice Martin has served with credit during the last three years. "Justice Martin's own introduction of himself has national significance because it indicates the type of person to whom the people of one great well schooled prosperous state prefer to trust their highest judicial responsibilities."

The paper quoted a speech by Judge Martin in which he described himself as a liberal member of a liberal court.

And in Madison last week final official tabulations from Theodore Dammann, state auditor, showed that in his home county, Brown, Justice Martin received 17,653 votes, or more than three times the combined total of his two opponents, and the highest total of any county in the state except Milwaukee. In neighboring Outagamie final figures showed 9,074 for Martin, almost double the total of both his opponents.

Weekly newspapers in Chilton and Omro went to press early last week while their editors hurried to Madison for the annual convention of the Wisconsin Press association. The state's country newspaper men gathered here over the weekend to talk over mutual problems and to hear round table talks by prominent members of the association. Among them were W. J. McHale of Chilton, second vice president, and F. A. Siebensohn, Omro.

While legislative debates are sometimes bitter, causing damage to sensitive feelings, often they are humorous. A bright spot in the loud and lengthy debate on the sterilization bill last week was the reply of Assemblyman Albert D. Shumek of Algoma to C. A. Budlong of Marinette, who asserted that had the bill passed 30 years ago "we wouldn't have the big home for feeble-minded persons that we have at Chippewa Falls and we'd save the state a million dollars a year."

Shumek, one of the conservative Democratic members who are on his feet in an instant with "can't I say with equal precision that if the law had been passed then we would not have a Progressive party today."

In one of the original battles on the LaFollette judicial retirement bill, Assemblyman Charles A. Budlong of Marinette criticized the size of the pension allowed in the measure, and attacked it as "a lawyer's bill."

He cited the case of Samuel Hastings, Green Bay circuit court justice, who, said Budlong, retired at 64, despite requests that he run again. He was, said Budlong, "one of the grandest old men ever to sit on the state bench."

Farm lobbyists who spend their time drinking butter milk and beer in the capital hotels instead of representing the farmers felt the lash of Senator John Cashman's scorn the other day.

Cashman's outburst was precipitated when he read a milk pool resolution which urged him and Senator Mike Kresky, (P), Green Bay, to see that the 15 cents a pound Wisconsin tax on oleomargarine is enforced. "It's about time we and his colleagues knew the legislature doesn't enforce the laws," said Cashman.

"We put the oleomargarine act on the statute books without the help of Weis and his so called farmer organizations. In 1935 while I was fighting to get the bill passed Weis printed a story attacking my milk pool record saying I did not cooperate with his legislative committee. All his legislative committee did was to drink buttermilk and beer while I was fighting to get the oleo bill through."

Cashman advised the authors of the resolution, originating in Brown, to make their request to the governor.

Frank Grass, Republican, Sturgeon Bay, was one of the few of his party to join the Progressives in opposing the referendum amendment to the state judicial retirement bill in the session which lasted nearly all night last Wednesday.

The referendum, he charged, was a subterfuge to kill the bill, and his sponsors, he said, were "the slippery club."

"Were you elected to represent the people back home," he asked, "or were you elected to pass the buck to them?"

Indications thus far are that the bill to establish a chair of Gaelic and Irish history and literature at the University of Wisconsin will pass through the legislature without much opposition. Among the sponsors of the measure are Senators Cashman of Denmark, Morrissey of Rush Lake and Mack of Shiocton. At the joint finance committee hearing on the bill, another of the authors, Senator Maurice Coskley, (R), Beloit, gave a demonstration of "Erin go bragh," war cry of ancient Ireland, before the committee.

Assemblyman Martin D. Franzkowiak, Milwaukee Democrat, has earned fame of a sort through his dislike of lobbyists, his unorthodox manner of debate, and a bill producing capacity far exceeding any of his colleagues.

Latest lobbyists to incur his wrath are the representatives of his own city who, he said in a resolution, "are expending monies at the capital quite freely and it has become notoriously known that they are inviting members . . . to refreshments and luncheons . . . and are offering other gratuities . . . all of which is distasteful and is causing embarrassment, chagrin and annoyance to certain members of this legislature."

Business men of Calumet, Outagamie and other counties near Lake Winnebago last year contributed more than $7,000 and this year will contribute twice that amount to aid in developing the lake area as a vacation resort, said Ray Novotny, Winnebago county conservationist and Democratic leader before the joint finance committee hearing on the joint fish removal appropriation bill. "In view of that fact," asked Novotny, "can't the state do a little bit?"

Novotny also invited the members of the finance committee, and the entire legislature, to the Winnebago county bass festival next month, a festival which he said would attract 50,000 sportsmen to the area.

Senators Mack and Morrissey, members of the senate committee on state and local government, gave some sharp advice to a Milwaukee official appearing before their committee the other day. The man turned his back to the committee and addressed the large audience, and was asked by Mack, "Are you talking to us, or to the gallery?"

Morrissey: "We'll retire, and when you're through, we'll come back."

Farmers, including a delegation from Brown county, furnished an afternoon of vitriolic argument with other farmers at the Bang's disease test bill hearing last week. Said Senator Oscar Morris, Milwaukee department store manager, that he looks like a farmer, and several times interrupted the slumber of Senator Harry Bolens, Port Washington manufacturer, and member of the committee on agriculture.

Arguments before the committee brought out percentages of Bang's disease testing already completed on Wisconsin dairy herds, including: Brown 9; Outagamie 9; Calumet 7; Manitowish 8; Oconto 7; Winnebago 12; Shawano 27.

Among those appearing for the Wisconsin Development Authority bill, called by the administration "the little TVA bill" at the public hearing were Louis Pantzlaff, Arthur Schmidt, Joseph Schlag, Frank Koenig and Otto Wagner, Brown county farmers. Wagner is a member of the state REA advisory board.

Among the new members of the state government personnel are Mary Stilt of Appleton and Maurice Pasch of New Holstein. Miss Stilt is a member of the executive office staff, receiving visitors of Governor LaFollette, while Pasch is one of the assistants of Orland S. Loomis, attorney general.

Senior Students Stage I-Act Play for Credit

Senior students in Miss Minne Smith's English class at Appleton High school are studying the drama and for extra credit work are presenting I-act plays. "Applying For a Position" was the latest play produced. The cast included Robert Hoolihan, Mac Trettin, Theodore Gerarden, Beatrice Otto and Merle Nelson.

Pierce Morrissey Takes Little Part In Senate Debate

Staunch Democrat Seldom Strays From Party Regularity

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)

Madison—Members of the legislature can generally be divided into two classes.

The first class consists of young men, many of them young lawyers, who look upon a legislative seat as a stepping stone in their careers, either in politics or in their professions. The second class includes those men to whom election to the legislature comes as a culmination of long years of civic leadership in their home communities, as a token of their neighbors' respect.

To this latter class belongs Senator Pierce A. Morrissey, Democrat, now completing his first term as the representative of the nineteenth Senatorial district, which includes Calumet and Winnebago counties.

Never Speaks
Senator Morrissey might be included in that class of legislators which an irreverent political writer once labelled "the mutes." He never makes a speech on the senate floor, never takes part in those acrimonious debates which are so frequent in the Wisconsin senate. In his quiet way he studies pending legislation in the light of his life time experience as a rural political leader, seldom strays from the policies determined at Democratic legislative caucuses.

Occupying a seat next to that able veteran, Senator Harry Bolens of Port Washington, Morrissey's voting record indicates a political and social philosophy similar to that of Bolens, who is recognized as the conservative senate spokesman and leader and arch foe of LaFollette policies and the Progressive party. Senator Morrissey does not hesitate to admit that Senator Bolens embodies his ideal of statesmanship.

Sponsors Few Bills

Senator Morrissey has introduced few bills, and those which bear his name are of direct local interest to his constituency. One of his characteristics is a shyness in the presence of newspapermen. "I don't like reporters," he has often said. Correspondents in legislative halls are nuisances which he has gradually learned to tolerate, however.

Morrissey entered Democratic state politics at a propitious moment. With many other Democratic legislative aspirants in 1932, he went to Madison with the Roosevelt tide which swept the state to assume the position held for many years by Merritt White, well known Winnebago county Republican leader.

A farmer all his life, Morrissey is a bachelor and recently celebrated his 67th birthday in good health. Since 1904 he has been prominent in the government of the town of Nepeuskun, in Winnebago county, successfully holding the offices of assessor, town chairman, member of the county board of supervisors, and member of the board of town chairmen.

Urges New York State to Legalize Mutuals Betting

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

The raw, lacerous gall of state legislatures in perpetrating political swindles sometimes covers up such jobs with an appearance of unreality. People find it impossible to believe that such things can be and let the robbery go unchallenged merely because it is incredibly bad.

A case in point is the current frantic search for some means of raising twenty million dollars in New York state. The legislature turned down a proposed increase of one cent in the gasoline tax which was counted upon to provide the money, and various alternatives have been suggested, but nobody has insisted on a race track betting tax which would easily cover the lack.

Florida, with a gambling business which is only a fraction of the potential New York turnover, raised almost $2,000,000 in taxes on the pari-mutual traffic this winter, much of this being New York money, and other states have profited in proportion.

Yet New York has horse racing and the legislature has now passed a law to legalize dog-tracks, and the gambling rights have been turned over to a lot of bookmakers, who form a colony of the political and social underworld, as a political concession. It is a good deal as though the state were to parcel out fishing or mining rights in a state preserve to a group of private individuals for the gambling concession is state property and could be worked with great profit.

But the state legislature, though it legalized race track gambling after many years of nominal illegality, refused to do anything to legalize the pari-mutual system whereby the public treasury would collect a percentage of every dollar wagered through the machines. The bookmakers are organized, and they have political connections and power, and the situation is one in which the gambling industry calmly walks off with millions of dollars that ought to drop into the treasury.

Other States Have Adopted the Mutual System

Against the mutual system it is urged that the wear and tear on a dollar soon consumes it all. If the tax and the breakage amounts to say, 10 per cent, the dollar is used up after 10 transactions and must be replaced by a dollar of fresh money. This theory, however, has not diminished the traffic in Maryland where the machines have operated for many years or in Kentucky, Illinois, Florida or other states. The supply of fresh money seems inexhaustible. In addition to which it may be shown that the wear and tear on a dollar in the hand-books is at least as bad, if not worse.

Bookmakers employ clerical staffs, and their costs of operation run so high that they are bound to take down at least as much as the state would collect in taxes before they can count on a profit. The proof is seen in the fact that the parimutuels consistently pay better odds in the mutual states than the books pay in New York, the only state which preserves the archaic and parasitic bookie system.

I am unable to suggest any explanation of this hesitancy except the obvious interest of political organizations in a method which throws at least $20,000,000 a year of potential taxes into the hands of individuals who enjoy a special privilege under the law.

Would Abolish Rich Racket of Individuals

Yet in running their hands over the citizens in search of concealed money, which might be lifted out of their pockets to meet the deficit, the statesmen have not even given serious thought to the adoption of the mutual system which would

(That's what makes movies the fascinating gamble they are: bad ones click, and good ones can miss.) How can a fellow learn to act unless he plays in pictures that'll teach him how? At Powell's salary for not acting, I'd be afraid to learn, personally—but Powell isn't.

Greeks Here Observing Holy Week; Will Attend Church at Fond du Lac

HOLY WEEK is being observed by Orthodox Greeks this week, and since the Appletton Greek community has no church here, the members will go to Fond du Lac for services at Holy Trinity church during the week. The Greek Holy week is being observed much later than that of western churches because of the fact that the Orthodox Greeks still use the old calendar.

The ecclesiastical difference in calculation which results in fixing the date for the Orthodox Easter different from that of western churches was one of the first topics to cause schism of the churches. History shows the opposing beliefs are said to be based on separate writings of the Bible.

During Holy week morning and evening services are read daily at Holy Trinity church, Fond du Lac. On Wednesday is featured the solemn blessing of the holy chrism or oil with which the priest anoints the communicants, signifying the grace of absolution. At this service also are read the seven gospels for the day, the light of seven candles used signifying the seven gifts of the Holy Spirit. On Great (Maundy) Thursday is read the liturgy of St. Basil, which is said only 10 times a year, on each Sunday of lent and on Holy Saturday. At this rite, commemorative of the last supper, many church members receive communion. Bread consecrated on this day is kept for use throughout the year on special occasions, for the sick, etc.

Thursday Program
Thursday night the 12 holy gospels on the passion of Christ from the gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John are read and there is a procession of the large wooden cross which stands behind the altar in every Orthodox church.

Prayers of the ancient six holy hours are condensed into a two-hour service for Good (Great) Friday morning, and at vespers in the afternoon the figure of Christ is removed from the cross. In the church stands a tomb made entirely of flowers, surmounted by an ikon of the scene preceding the burial of Christ. Every family of the parish donates flowers for the tomb. At night there is a candlelight procession with elegies appropriate to the passion of Christ. This service in the strongholds of Orthodoxy in Eastern countries is one of the most impressive of the season, the procession sometimes extending through the streets of the town and into the cemeteries.

Great Saturday rites combine the sorrow of the burial with the anticipated joy of the resurrection in their liturgy in the morning. The elaborate evening service is planned to end at midnight, and at one point the church is entirely darkened. After the liturgical announcement of the resurrection lighted candles are carried in procession by the entire congregation.

On Easter day the holy door of the tabernacle is opened and remains so during all of Easter week.

sale is over. The cookie sale committee will be at the Girl Scout office Saturday with a corps of cars to distribute cookies to the troop stations during the day.

Tenor to be Guest Artist For Concert

WILLIAM MILLER, a lyric tenor who has been called the American John McCormack, will be the guest artist with the Appleton Symphony orchestra when it presents its final concert of the season May 6 at Lawrence Memorial chapel.

After Mr. Miller made his debut in Chicago in 1930, the critics said of him: "To find a new tenor who has about nine-tenths of the best points in musical make-up of the professional is indeed a pleasure. Mr. Miller does not need any further praise, but details must have their place so that the public will more clearly understand that it missed hearing a lovely voice, exquisite diction."

He has been very much in demand in radio since his arrival in Chicago and at present is being heard every week on four commercial programs, three of them being over the national networks. He was the only soloist to be engaged three successive years with Chicago's famous Apollo club and the only soloist to be engaged by both the Apollo club and the Swedish Choral Club in one season, as he was in 1934-35.

First Appearance
Mr. Miller made his first appearance with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in Frederick Stock's concert version of "Tristan and Isolde" during the season 1935-36 at Ochsner hall, Chicago. He was recently engaged by the St. Paul Civic Opera association to sing the leading role of Jenik in their production of "The Bartered Bride" and received the following comment from the press:

"It was a judicious thing to invite William Miller, the young Chicago tenor who had already sung the role of Jenik in English. He has a beautiful voice, produced with both certitude and freedom. . . . a voice destined, one must believe for wide popularity. His stage manner is easy, and not overdone."

Another paper said of him: "William Miller of Chicago does the role of Jenik in an agreeable and flexible tenor voice and with the assets of youthful candor and freshness that his predecessor did not possess. Mr. Miller's Jenik proves he has the intelligence of a leading tenor of early French opera company."

What's New at the Library

A combination of memoirs, witty commentary and imagery, portraying Dublin, Irish and English life as known by Oliver St. J. Gogarty is his newly published volume, "As I Was Going Down Sackville Street." The book contains episodes about such noted figures as George Moore, Yeats, Griffith and Collins, Dunsany and Horace Plunkett, and is enlivened by sketches and drawings which amount to caricature. It is one of the new books at Appleton Public library.

Errol Flynn, better known to the general public as the dashing star of "Captain Blood," "The Charge of the Light Brigade" and other movies, has published the story of his adventures as a boy of 20 aboard a 40-year-old sailing yacht with three companions in a book entitled "Beams End." The experiences of four irresponsible youths bound for any shore in New Guinea begins with a spree and ends with a typhoon.

The lively account of a wife and mother who tells the true story of her life in a city in Georgia is given in "As I Live and Breathe" by Willie Snow Ehrbridge. This Georgia wife of a newspaper man and mother of three small children brings actual characters and happenings of her own life into the account, giving real names of town, streets and people.

That hilarious comedy by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, "You Can't Take It With You," has been received in book form at the library and is being catalogued and made ready for circulation. Written in more genial mood than others of their plays, notably, "Once in a Lifetime," this play deals only with absurdity, hilarity and friendly laughter with mad, comic people.

Some startling conclusions in regard to Lincoln's death and the events surrounding the Civil war are contained in the book, "Why Was Lincoln Murdered?" by Otto Essenschmidt. More than half of the text deals with the assassination of Lincoln, the rest with the period of the Civil war and reconstruction incorporated into the book is the extraordinary inference that the Civil war was deliberately prolonged by a powerful Union group for specific political reasons and the assassination of Lincoln was essential to the success of this plot. The prime agent was a power-hungry high government official, at that time evidence is circumstantial and a jury would have to ignore much of it, but he presents his case without imposing his conclusions.

How to Make Opening In Suit Partner Has Bid

BY ELY CULBERTSON

When you are making your opening lead in a suit your partner has bid, lead as follows:

At suit contracts, open your highest card if you hold three of a doubleton. If you have four or more of your partner's suit, open your highest only if your holding is A x x x, K Q x x, or Q J x x; otherwise, lead fourth highest, even from 10 9 8 2.

At no trump contracts, open your highest card only from doubletons, or from worthless three card suits (headed by no honor). Otherwise lead your fourth highest from four or more cards of your partner's suit, and your lowest from three cards to an honor (A x x x, K x x, K 10 9, Q 10 x, J x x, K J x x, 10 9 x, etc.). But when the suit is headed by two or more honors in sequence, lead the highest honor.

TODAY'S HAND

A player need not be even mildly expert to realize that a bid from an opponent identifies him with high card strength. When both opponents have bid it requires a certain amount of thought to determine their respective high card holdings. Consider today's hand:

West, dealer.

East-West vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ Q 9 5 4
♥ K Q J 3
♦ K 6 5
♣ A 8

WEST
♠ A K 8 3 2
♥ 7 6
♦ Q 9 4
♣ A 8 2

EAST
♠ 7 5 2
♥ A K J 10 3 2
♦ Q 7 5 4
♣ A 10 6 3

Match point duplicate game. The bidding:

West North East South
Pass Pass 1 diamond 1 heart
1 spade 3 hearts Pass 4 hearts
Pass Pass Pass

Obviously North and South bid their hands to the limit. North's jump heart raise being particularly questionable.

West opened the queen of diamonds and, after seeing the dummy, promptly shifted to the deuce of clubs. Declarer, without more than a second's hesitation, put on dummy's king, which held the trick. Two rounds of trumps were drawn and there then was no difficulty in holding the opponents to one club and one spade, in addition to the diamond already conceded.

The club guess had been the crux of the hand, but in sober truth it had been an easy guess. The East had opened the bidding, but 1-1 taken no action whatsoever after that one bid. West had overcalled the heart with a spade and from that fact, and the spades in sight.

East must be very short of spades. Surely, with shortness in his partner's suit, the ace-king of diamonds (marked from the opening lead) and the club ace, East would have doubled the final four heart contract. That he had not done so was 98 per cent proof that he did not have the club ace.

It is unfortunate that players often go wrong on guesses that are just as easy as this one.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Question: Dealer opened with a bid of three spades. Next hand, my partner, doubled. Third hand passed. Should I respond with hearts or let the three spade bid stand with the following?

♠ A 8 6 5 ♣ Q J 8 7 5 ♦ A 8 5

Answer: Bid four hearts.

TOMORROW'S HAND

South, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ K 5 4 3 2
♥ Q 9 6 4
♦ K 5 2
♣ A

WEST
♠ 9 8 8
♥ 10
♦ 9 8 4 3
♣ K 8 7 4 2

EAST
♠ Q 10 6
♥ 5 3
♦ J 10 7
♣ K 10 6 5 3

Mr. Culbertson will discuss this hand in tomorrow's article.

JO-JOTTE POINTER

When the opponent bids a suit at Jo-Jotte, the bidding does not necessarily end there. You still may double (if you are certain of defeating the contract) or bid no trump. A suit bid may not be overcalled, you remember, with another suit, but only with a trump.

The no trump overall is highly advantageous if you make your contract. Your opponent's jack and nine of trump are reduced from their position as the highest cards in the deck to a status of almost complete worthlessness. The absence of a trump suit makes it easier for you to win tricks with your aces and tens. But you must have those aces and tens because, if you are outscored, you almost certainly will lose a game, and your opponent might not have scored 50 points for game at his trump suit.

Old Gardener Says:

BY E. I. FARRINGTON

It is still not too late to set out chrysanthemums for fall bloom. The Korean hybrids offer a wide variety of colors and both double and single forms. They bloom sufficiently early not to be cut off by frost before they reach their height of bloom. King Midas has large double flowers, which are soft yellow in color. The Moor is a portwine red with flowers as double and almost as large as King Midas. Embury withstands all sorts of weather conditions and is a brilliant glowing bronze. It, too, is double. Among the new singles are Agnes Selkirk Clark, a bronzy-pink and salmon. Nancy Copeland, a spectrum red with an opalescent sheen, and Pink Lustre, an orchid-pink.

My Neighbor Says—

Do not take too thick a paring off potatoes. The best part of the potato is near the skin. On the other hand, parings from turnips should be thick. The turnip has an outer part that destroys the flavor of the whole if not thoroughly removed.

When making blueberry pie, mix one teaspoon of ground nutmeg with two tablespoons of flour and sprinkle the mixture on the berries, then add sugar.

A little household ammonia added to the water with which mosquito bites are washed will take the sting out of the bite.

If stung by a wasp or bee the pain will be quickly removed if a piece of raw onion is rubbed over the affected part.

Children of Times Gone By

I—IN ATHENS AND ROME

If we boarded an ocean liner, we might travel across the Atlantic, through the Strait of Gibraltar and into the Mediterranean sea. Steaming about 1,600 miles eastward on that sea, we could reach the city of Athens, capital of Greece.

Athens is an interesting place to visit today, but 2,300 years ago it was far more than that—it was the greatest center of learning in the world. Some of the most famous men in history lived there—Socrates, Plato, Aristotle and others.

Children of Athens played games of many kinds, including tag, blind-man's buff and hide-and-seek. Boys rolled hoops and played "catch" with balls. Girls amused themselves with dolls, commonly made from painted clay or wax. Some of the dolls had arms and legs which could be moved.

Another famous city in ancient times was Rome, the present capital of Italy. In Rome it was possible for girls to go to school, but as a rule they seldom were able to spend more than two or three years in studying.

Roman boys went to private schools when their parents could pay the teachers. The poorer boys did not have any schooling.

Roman boys spent little time on music or poetry, but they learned to read and write, and to do small problems in arithmetic. They used the so-called "Roman numerals." They wrote the figure "3" as "III" and the figure "164" as "CLXIV." Their system of numbers seems clumsy to us, for we use Arabic numbers, which are much more simple to handle.

Fairy tales were popular with small children in Rome. Little boys and girls were to be seen sitting beside their nurses, listening to stories about kings and queens, and handsome princes who won the hearts of beautiful princesses with the help of magic. A story very much like Cinderella was told to the Roman children, but the first Cinderella story is believed to have grown in Egypt.

(For History section of your scrapbook.)

The least called "Music Master" may be had by sending a stamped return envelope to me in care of this paper.

A Roman Girl About 12 Years of Age.

The custom in ancient Athens was to keep girls at home, instead of letting them go to school. They were taught the household arts—to spin thread and weave cloth, to sew and to embroider. If they learned to read and write, it was through special help given in their homes.

Habits Formed by Long, Uninterrupted Practice

BY ANGELO PATRI

"How can I overcome my child's poor taste in reading? I have given him good books, read to him, done everything possible, and still he will turn to the silly series. His reading habits are certainly poor."

Another mother says, "How can I change my child's habits? He has such bad manners. He takes huge mouthfuls at table, he forgets to take his hat when he should, he asks for things and forgets the 'please.' I have taught him better, but the habit does not stick. He goes back to his old ways over and over."

Still another: "My daughter is untidy about her room. She will drop things wherever she happens to be, and unless her attention is called to it, she won't pick them up. I can't seem to overcome this. I have done my best to set the habit of neatness in her, but I have failed."

Reading this you will think these are well grown children, of perhaps high school age, who have carried the carefree ways of childhood too long. None of them is more than ten years old. Their mothers, eager to set good habits for life, are discouraged because the children, in spite of all their teaching and training, persist in making the same fumbling gestures.

It is a habit that can be before it is a habit that can be depended upon to work its way without direction and impulsion from the person concerned? How old? Sometimes it takes a lifetime to set a habit that controls behavior. Sometimes it takes one experience. These are the extremes. Ordinary habits are set in the period between birth and maturity.

The power of repeated experience, which is what habits are, must depend upon many things—first and foremost, the original inheritance and endowment of the child. If his nature is opposed from the beginning to the habit you would set, it is going to take a long, long time to set it. If his nature takes kindly to the idea it is going to be easy to set it.

Usually a habit is set by long practice, uninterrupted, successful practice over a period of years. Time and practice are the essential factors in setting any habit. It is certain that many desirable habits require the full period from birth through adolescence for their setting. Few worth while habits are strong at the age of ten. Those based upon instinct and need usually hold by that time, but those worthy ones that have to do with taste, social adjustments, correct and profit-

Mind Your C's, Says Film Star

BY ELSIE PIERCE

SYLVIA SIDNEY is supposed to have a perfect face. Her chin to the hairline is three times the length of her nose. The distance between her eyes equals the width of an eye. Space between lower and upper lid equals that between upper lid and brow. Eyebrows start on the same line as inner corner of the eye. Her face is exactly twice as wide as the length of her nose. Perfect dimensions for the perfect oval.

And this screen star... she of the perfect face says: "I believe that every girl owes it to herself and the world that has to look at her to make the very best of herself and her appearance. There is no girl, no matter how plain, who cannot improve her appearance a hundred percent with a little care and attention to the 'C's'—clothes, complexion, and coiffure.

If you know your lines, choose your clothes carefully, wear them with an air, they can help immeasurably to make you look like a somebody.

A lovely complexion is the first requisite of beauty, and make-up cleverly employed can "point up" one's good points and make the face look more nearly perfect.

The coiffure, too, not only shows off beautiful hair, but properly arranged helps to create optical illusions.

Miss Sidney says: "I always cleanse my face thoroughly with a light cleansing cream. When the skin is clean and thoroughly dry, I massage my face and neck with an ice cube covered with a linen cloth. This makes the skin look lively and healthy."

She uses very little make-up because she prefers to give her skin a rest from the heavy make-up necessary in pictures. A powder, fourfold very lightly used, a face powder and a bright lipstick are all she uses for general daytime wear. More for evening.

She says she knows of nothing except health and plenty of rest to keep the eyes bright and shiny. A boracic acid solution as an eye wash and witch hazel pads to help rest the eyes.

Keeping Slender

She has no problem keeping slender. Her waist is 21 inches. She weighs 103 pounds and is five feet three. In Hollywood she rider horse back in New York she walks. These are practically her only exercises and she feels that any light exercise is good—"but don't make a chore of it. Stop exercising before you feel tired. She feels massage is best for whitening down hips and proper diet and posture even better than exercise for waist.

THE LETTERS FROM BRIDES

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to be married for the first time, and although I believe you have said that a colored wedding dress and veil would not be fair to expect them to live through this sort of thing all over again. Will you tell me what you think about it?

Answer: The fact that the bridegroom has been married before in no way affects the plans that the bride chooses to make for HER first wedding.

Dear Mrs. Post: This, my home town, was also where I went to college. In fact, I was graduated just a year ago and naturally have many friends who are still in school. I was very active in the glee club at college and think it would be very fitting if I could have the glee club sing at my wedding. Would there be anything irregular in this plan, and if not, will you tell me how they could be worked into the wedding arrangement?

Answer: To have them sing the wedding march exactly as it is sung in the opera "Lohengrin" would be lovely.

(Copyright, 1937)

Dear Mrs. Post: I am marrying a man who is fifteen years older than I and who has been married and has half-grown children. I am not yet thirty and of course, never have had a wedding. I've always secretly hoped to have one some day at which I would be dressed in the traditional white satin and veil and have bridesmaids and perhaps able behavior, have to be cultivated over a longer period.

Reading is first a task, then a habit. The sort of reading that is selected is a matter of taste. Taste is cultivated over a long period, improving by profitable experiences. Time is needed here.

Manners are a matter of time and experience. Again time must be allowed for their cultivation. They are not instinctive, but applied on the surface of nature, and much time and practice is needed to make them stick.

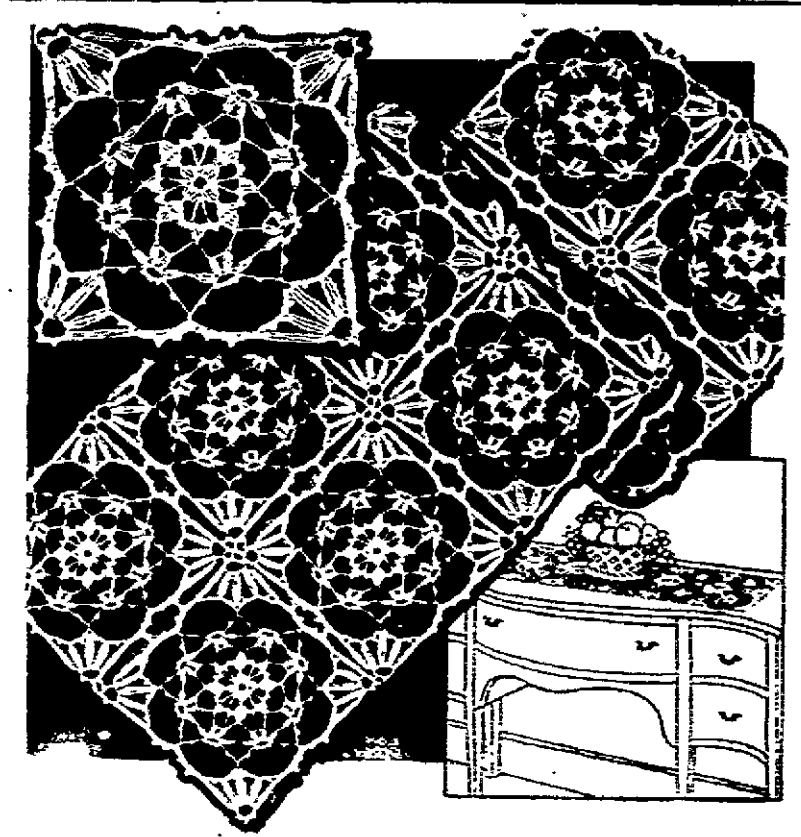

Neatness is a habit that is hard for some people to acquire. Some require a longer time and more practice than others, but this habit can be set by steady teaching and example from the beginning. A bad start is usually at the root of untidiness.

Don't be in a hurry about habits. Take your time and don't expect them to function automatically until time has set them deeply in the very fibres of mind and body. Not until then will they serve.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Every Husband's Prosperity Depends on Wife's Thrift

BY DOROTHY DIX

What kind of an education should a girl be given? What does a girl need to know? asks a mother. Well, I think that every girl should be given the best education possible because being a woman is the most complicated job on earth and the one that requires the most knowledge.

DOROTHY DIX

Every girl should be taught not only to make money, but also how to take care of it and how to spend it so as to get the most out of it. Every husband's prosperity depends upon his wife's thrift. If she is extravagant and wasteful, he cannot get ahead, no matter how hard he works. Few women want to handicap their husbands and when a wife is a spendthrift it is almost inevitable because she has never been taught how to handle money.

Every girl should be taught how to cook and sew. Whatever else a woman needs to know in life she needs to know these two things. If she is poor, they will enable her to feed and clothe her family with the least expenditure of money. If she is rich, they will help her to care for her clothes and order her household more efficiently. Always there will be domestic emergencies when a woman would gladly swap her degree in chemistry for a working knowledge of how to make a good biscuit, and when she wishes she knew as much about how to darn socks and mend tears in the children's clothes as she does about the Einstein theory.

Every girl should be given at least a practical course in home nursing. It is the lot of almost every woman in the world to have to care for her sick and it is a shame that she is not prepared for the task. Most girls must with no more idea of how to take care of a baby than they have of taming a lion. They are petrified with fear lest they break Junior in two when they give him his first bath.

They do not know what to do in any emergency. They can't even tell whether or not a symptom is alarming when a child isn't well. They not only enrich doctors and subsidize nurses by calling them in when there is no need, but also they wear themselves out with uncalled for anxieties. Sometimes they let their loved ones die or some disease get beyond control because they did not know enough to get frightened in time.

In these mechanical days, when every house is a mass of electrical gadgetry, how much money and worry and aggravation it would save if every girl's education contained a stiff course in electrical engineering. As it is, all that most women can do when the egg-beater suddenly ceases to function, the icebox goes blooey and something mysterious happens to the cord of the iron, is to telephone to the electrician and wait until he comes, and with what seems a magical turn of the wrist sets the darn things going again. What a saving in time, patience and money it would be if only the housewife knew the secret of this trick and could do it herself!

The same thing applies to plumbing and carpentering. Why shouldn't girls be taught how to put in washers on leaking faucets; unchoke a kitchen sink; drive a nail or two without wounding their fingers, splitting the woodwork and battering up the wall? Any woman who has enough mechanical skill and ingenuity to put up her hair on patent curlers and get herself into a one-way stretch corset could do any of these household chores with one hand tied behind her if she were only taught the technique.

In olden times girls were given a flowery education dealing with the elegancies of literature. Then they went highbrow. Now it is time for them to become handy as well as intelligent and learn how to do the things they are going to need to know how to do.

There Are NO MORE TICKETS To Be Had Anywhere

Please do not come to the armory tomorrow night if you haven't a ticket because none will be sold.

We are emphatic in this announcement because we fear that some people still cherish the hope that tickets might be obtained at the box office. We assure you again there aren't any. But those who have tickets are in for an evening they will long remember. The doors will open at 7:15 and the musical program, a concert by the Appleton Civic Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Milton A. Herberg, begins at 7:45.

A small army of ushers will be on hand to escort people to their seats and make sure of their comfort.

The formal program will start promptly at 8:15. Immediately following this program a total of 115 gifts of the kind that delight the hearts of fishermen, will be distributed. After that there will be the fish lunch prepared by Chef Gus Karras and the free beer — all you can drink.

City Officials Endorse Jaces' Clean-Up Drive

Mayor Held's Clean-Up Proclamation Goes Into Effect Today

Menasha—Today marked the opening of the city-wide clean-up, paint-up drive in Menasha which is being sponsored by the Menasha Junior Chamber of Commerce. The drive will continue until Saturday, May 1.
Cooperation of citizens with members of the Junior Chamber is urged by Mayor Walter E. Held, who issued a proclamation officially declaring this week paint-up, clean-up week in Menasha.
Fire chief Paul Theimer endorsed the clean-up week program and said that much could be done with such a program to prevent fire loss. He said, "A clean city is safe, beautiful and attractive. A filthy city is unsightly and subject to fires. A clean home and its surroundings seldom burn."
Makes Suggestions
The fire chief suggested that citizens clean out basements and closets. Look for old paint cans, paint rags, newspapers, wrapping paper, and other waste materials. Get rid of old furniture, discarded decorations, boxes with excelsior or any other inflammable materials.
When cleaning the yard of leaves and rubbish, he warned, be careful how and where rubbish fires are built. Fires should be watched and extinguished in the evening. Do not build them near buildings or on windy days, he said.
The program was also endorsed by Dr. J. P. Skibba, city physician, who said, "During this week the Junior Chamber of Commerce is calling to our attention a clean-up, paint-up week. Such a program is helpful in public health work. We as citizens should gladly cooperate with them."
Mayor Held has also ordered that a survey of city owned property be made by officials. If city property is in need of repainting or cleaning, the work will be done this week. Other city officials have also commended the project sponsored by the Junior Chamber.

Prepare Armory G for First Annual Fishermen's Party

Program to Begin With Concert by Civic Symphony

Don't Expect to Get in if You Haven't Your Ticket

BY H. K. DERUS
GAIN we must repeat: There are no more tickets left for the first annual Appleton Post-Crescent Fishermen's Party at Armory G tomorrow night.

We warn all those who do not have tickets not to come to the armory tomorrow night, hoping that they might secure a ticket at the box office. This will not be possible because there are no more tickets.

Today all was feverish activity at the armory as a crew of workmen began to get everything in readiness for the party. The doors will open at 7:15 and the first portion of the program, a concert by the Appleton Civic Symphony orchestra, will begin at 7:45. This fine orchestra of 25 pieces under the direction of Milton A. Heberg, will present a concert until 8:15 when the formal program opens.

A large staff of ushers will be on hand to assist the guests at the party in getting seated.

B. O. Webster to Talk
Greetings from the Appleton Post-Crescent will open the formal program and this will be followed by a 15-minute address by B. O. Webster, superintendent of fisheries with the state conservation department, who will tell about the activities of his department in the breeding and raising of game fish with which Wisconsin waters are being stocked in an effort to improve the sport.

His talk will be followed by some feats of magic by Dr. Ray Finkle, Seymour, an amateur magician who is well known throughout these parts. Dr. Finkle says he will teach fishermen a few tricks which should help them to master them, would gain them wide fame for their angling ability. Dr. Finkle insists, however, that he never uses these tactics when he is on a fishing trip because then everything is on "the up and up."

Brad, Benny and Ken, the Three Musical Stylers, now playing at Normandie Inn, will appear next to entertain the party. These boys, who can make their musical instruments do unusual things, will present a varied program of numbers arranged by themselves. And we certainly guarantee this act.

Next we will hear from Bert Claffin, outdoor editor of the Post-Crescent, who will discuss how to catch fish and will tell about some of the places where the big ones can be found.

After the 15-minute talk by Bert Claffin, two reels of motion pictures will be presented. These pictures, loaned by the South Bend Bait company, will depict salmon and muskie fishing, showing some of the haunts of the big ones and how the experts land them. Every fisherman in the audience will thrill to these pictures.

And Ten—121 Gifts
The fun begins following the motion pictures. Judge Fred V. Heinemann will preside at the presentation of 121 gifts to as many fortunate fishermen. And these are SOME gifts.

For instance, here are a few typical ones:
An Ertre motor, donated by Kaufman Hardware and Sport shop.
Twelve cases of beer donated by Geo. Walter Brewing company.
Electric City Brewing company.
Denmark Brewery, Stark Distributors, and Blatz Brewing company.

Over two dozen bottles of various types of snake-bite cure, otherwise known as whisky, donated by a group of firms.
Scores of baits of various types.
Over a half dozen very expensive casting rods, some equipped with reels.
And many others.

But the end is not yet.
We're still going to eat. Yes, and drink, too. Gus Karmas, our chef, who recently came to the Metropolitan cafe from Evanston, Ill., will have a staff of more than two dozen people at the armory waiting to start serving the boneless perch lunches as soon as the distribution of gifts is completed. More than 500 pounds of perch are being prepared for serving tomorrow night. And with the perch will be all the trimmings.

And there will be beer. A lot you want to drink. With plenty of coffee, also.
That is what is in store for the lucky 2,050 fishermen who were fortunate enough to secure tickets for this first annual party.
We'll be glad to see you at the party tomorrow night. But if you don't have a ticket now.

TO HURL FOR LITTLE CHUTE

Richard Weisgerber, above, who pitched for Menasha Gold Labels in the Northern State league last year, has been signed by Little Chute Legion of the Northern State for this season. Menasha is not entered in the loop this year. Beside being a top hurler, Weisgerber is handy with the bat and can double in the outfield if necessary.

The Chuteers also have signed Howie Ellis, Appleton, to play second base; E. Gullicksen, Neenah, to play in the outfield and Pug Dembrowski, Menasha, outfielder. With Ellis at second, Bill Peotter, Appleton, probably will be used at first base. The Chuteers held a workout yesterday despite the muddy field. Practices are scheduled this week at 5:30 on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons.

Lash Just Beginning to Run, Coach Hayes Claims

PHILADELPHIA.—He is the national A. A. U. cross country champion. He holds the world record at two miles. He has a share in the new world record of 17:16.1 for the four-mile relay. He has to his credit victory at a mile over two such veteran campaigners as Luigi Beccali of Italy and Gene Benzeke of the New York A. C.

He ran the mile in 4:13.8, 4:17.2 and 4:24.3 in two days at the Penn relay carnival at Franklin field last Friday and Saturday. Yet in the estimation of E. C. "Billy" Hayes, coach of the Indiana University track team, Don Lash, the young man in question has just started to run.

"Don ought to be really good in another two years," said stoutly.

Youthful Sheboygan Editor Meets Feller

Cleveland.—"Sister Heffer, 12-year-old editor from Sheboygan, Wis., asked a question on the lips of many sports fans when he interviewed Bob Feller, young pitching sensation of the American league Cleveland Indians, in a radio hour here yesterday.

"If a man's games will you win?" he asked the 18-year-old pitcher, who lost a 4 to 3 baseball game against the St. Louis Browns Saturday.

Feller told his young interrogator he gave him the answer to that question in October.

Butler edited a neighborhood newspaper at Sheboygan.

Tony Menaro is happy with his National open golf title. "It has meant a lot to me," he declares. "I definitely and otherwise. You know, just winning the championship is a real game."

Feller Says Arm Will Be Ready in Few Days

Cleveland.—(AP)—Bob Feller predicted today he would "be ready in a day or two" to resume regular mound duty for the Cleveland Indians. The brilliant school boy pitcher pulled a muscle in his right arm in Saturday's game with the St. Louis Browns.

"It feels even better than I thought it would," remarked Feller, who struck out 11 St. Louis batters in the six innings he worked.

Feller's initial appearance this season was marred by an erratic first inning, when he gave two hits and walked four Browns to give the visitors the four runs which enabled them to defeat the Tribe, 4 to 3.

The youth did not disclose to Manager Steve O'Neill until the sixth frame that he pulled the muscle on a curve ball in the first inning. The manager immediately replaced Feller with Ivy Paul Andrews.

All of which adds up to a continuation of the most famous pitching warfare of the current diamond era, between the Giants' crack left-hander, who pitched a three-hitter in his first start, and the gas house gang's overworked right-hand ace, with two victories to his credit to date.

His first time out, Diz just toyed with the Cincinnati Reds and flashed all the way on top. Yesterday he was really bearing down against the Cards' dangerous rivals, Chicago's Cubs, but the result was unchanged. He allowed four scattered hits, struck out ten, let only one man get as far as third and walked in with a 4-0 shutout, his second whitewashing.

Giants Defeated
The Giants, defending the National league pennant, lost a five-chance move into the top with Pittsburgh by undergirding their customarily disaster-prone habit of failing to get runs for their pitchers.

Rookie Cliff Melton turned in a six-hitter and fanned 13 men for the year's record, only to have the Boston Bees catch up with him for a pair of runs in the ninth and post a 2-1 win. The victory ended Boston's 26-inning run-less streak and finished a four-game string of losses, Pittsburgh and the Reds were rained out.

The New York Yankees finally opened fire with all their guns and battered the Red Sox and temperamental Wes Ferrell for a 13-hit 9-3 win in Boston. The victory gave Murderer's Row a second-place league tie with Detroit's Tigers, who found Vernon Kennedy's strikeout ball too tough and went down before the White Sox 11-6 for their first setback. This pair of results left Connie Mack's upsetting Athletics at the top of the heap with three wins in four starts, since the A's were rained out at Washington.

Brooklyn and the Phillies put on their customary queer assortment of baseball doings, with the Daffy Dodgers finishing in front 10-6 in one of the day's two 11-inning games, after being on the short end of a 6-2 counts as late as the sixth frame. In the other overtime tilt, the Cleveland Indians also came from behind to nose out the St. Louis Browns 5-4 in the eleventh. Responsible for the Brooklyn win were homers by Buddy Hassett and Heinie Manush.

Boxing Champs Hope To Keep Doubles' Title
New York.—(AP)—Al Stanina and Mike Straka will attempt to retain their American Bowling Congress doubles title despite the jinx that hangs over former champions in bowling's biggest show.

The Chicagoans, who topped the field at Indianapolis, last year, with a 1,347 total hope to repeat, today the A's are against them.

The leaders were unchanged after the Sunday rolling. Albert Baum and Alfred Macherius, Milwaukee, posted 1,285 in the doubles, to lead the division. Harold Asplund, Denver, Colo., scored 665 for the best singles count while Bevo's place Rockford, Ill., rolled up 2,959 for high count in the team competition.

who was unable to appear after a physician's examination. Hoffman, Marion, also lost by default because of a doctor's orders not to appear on the card.

Nibs Knox of Clintonville was the referee and judges were Sherman and Bolton, also of Clintonville, from his Mauston opponent.

Marion.—The undefeated record of the Mauston High boxing squad was broken here last Friday night when the Marion High-boxers came through to win a tie in the match.

Each team won three bouts and lost one each by default. The other bout ended in a draw. Tom Meyer and John Buhr boxed a no-decision contest at 93 pounds and F. Meyer, Marion, defeated Wilke at 125 pounds.

Lewis, Mauston, defeated Gruenwald in three rounds at 136 pounds and Lobenski, Mauston, copped a decision from L. Rogers at 151 pounds. M. ## Dizzy Dean Hurls St. Louis Cards To Another Win

Gas House Gang's Crack Pitcher Turns Back Chicago Cubs

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer
HE folks may be fed up with Dizzy Dean's whacky words and daffy doings, but it's a safe bet no one in St. Louis is going to mind much as long as the great one keeps fogging 'em in.

With all his eccentric antics, Diz's good right arm is still the most valuable piece of pitching bric-a-brac in the business today.

Just as "King Carl" Hubbell demonstrated last week that he is back with all his stuff for this year's wars, so has Dizzy the great-left little doubt: in two starts that he is the No. 1 figure in the Cards title hopes.

All of which adds up to a continuation of the most famous pitching warfare of the current diamond era, between the Giants' crack left-hander, who pitched a three-hitter in his first start, and the gas house gang's overworked right-hand ace, with two victories to his credit to date.

His first time out, Diz just toyed with the Cincinnati Reds and flashed all the way on top. Yesterday he was really bearing down against the Cards' dangerous rivals, Chicago's Cubs, but the result was unchanged. He allowed four scattered hits, struck out ten, let only one man get as far as third and walked in with a 4-0 shutout, his second whitewashing.

Giants Defeated
The Giants, defending the National league pennant, lost a five-chance move into the top with Pittsburgh by undergirding their customarily disaster-prone habit of failing to get runs for their pitchers.

Rookie Cliff Melton turned in a six-hitter and fanned 13 men for the year's record, only to have the Boston Bees catch up with him for a pair of runs in the ninth and post a 2-1 win. The victory ended Boston's 26-inning run-less streak and finished a four-game string of losses, Pittsburgh and the Reds were rained out.

The New York Yankees finally opened fire with all their guns and battered the Red Sox and temperamental Wes Ferrell for a 13-hit 9-3 win in Boston. The victory gave Murderer's Row a second-place league tie with Detroit's Tigers, who found Vernon Kennedy's strikeout ball too tough and went down before the White Sox 11-6 for their first setback. This pair of results left Connie Mack's upsetting Athletics at the top of the heap with three wins in four starts, since the A's were rained out at Washington.

Brooklyn and the Phillies put on their customary queer assortment of baseball doings, with the Daffy Dodgers finishing in front 10-6 in one of the day's two 11-inning games, after being on the short end of a 6-2 counts as late as the sixth frame. In the other overtime tilt, the Cleveland Indians also came from behind to nose out the St. Louis Browns 5-4 in the eleventh. Responsible for the Brooklyn win were homers by Buddy Hassett and Heinie Manush.

Boxing Champs Hope To Keep Doubles' Title
New York.—(AP)—Al Stanina and Mike Straka will attempt to retain their American Bowling Congress doubles title despite the jinx that hangs over former champions in bowling's biggest show.

The Chicagoans, who topped the field at Indianapolis, last year, with a 1,347 total hope to repeat, today the A's are against them.

The leaders were unchanged after the Sunday rolling. Albert Baum and Alfred Macherius, Milwaukee, posted 1,285 in the doubles, to lead the division. Harold Asplund, Denver, Colo., scored 665 for the best singles count while Bevo's place Rockford, Ill., rolled up 2,959 for high count in the team competition.

who was unable to appear after a physician's examination. Hoffman, Marion, also lost by default because of a doctor's orders not to appear on the card.

Nibs Knox of Clintonville was the referee and judges were Sherman and Bolton, also of Clintonville, from his Mauston opponent.

Marion.—The undefeated record of the Mauston High boxing squad was broken here last Friday night when the Marion High-boxers came through to win a tie in the match.

Each team won three bouts and lost one each by default. The other bout ended in a draw. Tom Meyer and John Buhr boxed a no-decision contest at 93 pounds and F. Meyer, Marion, defeated Wilke at 125 pounds.

Lewis, Mauston, defeated Gruenwald in three rounds at 136 pounds and Lobenski, Mauston, copped a decision from L. Rogers at 151 pounds. M. # Lash Expected to Turn in 4:05 Mile Any Day Now

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(P)—Are the Cards' asking waivers on Duffy Lash? Look for a federal court decision in the Jim Braddock-Madison Square Garden tangle by Friday. . . . Gene Venzke tells Art Daley of the Times that durable Don Lash will be stepping that mile in 4:05 any day now. . . . Soon as the Indiana iron man develops his sprinting. . . . The pictures from the coast, where Gauge Rodfrey is training for a comeback, show he's loved the pok' chops not wisely but too well—but definitely. . . .

Those Walkers are plenty hot around the big leagues. . . . Dixie of the White Sox, Gerry of the Tigers and Harvey of the Reds are really clouting that apple. . . . Scout Ira Thomas, who's been busy rounding up those smooth-looking hurlers for Connie Mack, has hit the banquet circuit. . . . Two meals and two speeches in one night for him last week in up-state Penna. . . . Get an earful of the latest nickname for Everett Marshall: Blond Bear of the Rockies, they're calling the Colorado rascal way out west. . . .

Pete de Paolo had been thinking of a racing comeback via the Indianapolis "500" this year. . . . But then Pete decided that Pete's a little too old. . . . Bud Wilkinson, signal-caller for the Minnesota football mob last fall, won't get his degree until June. . . . But jumped the gun by moving in on his new job as Syracuse backfield coach for spring training. . . . Sent congratulations to Rogers Hornsby. The Rajah hits birthday 41 tomorrow. . . . And still going strong. . . .

The rumor still goes the rounds that Lefty O'Doul (remember the man in the green suit?) will be brought out of the Coast league and back to the big time again as a manager. . . . Deacon Scott, the pre-Gehrig iron man, drew a big play from the scrubs at the American Bowling congress. . . . But they almost completely overlooked Bullet Joe Buch. . . . A pretty fair country pitcher with the Yanks in Ruth's day. . . .

Max Bear wants to kiss and make up with Madison Square Garden. . . . He's willing to take the Bob Pastor fight which the Garden accused him of running out on when he went to London to get his lumps from Tom Farr. . . . The Yanks, who broke all records for homers last year, have hit just one so far for '37. . . . Tony Lazzeri is the only better to poosh one up.

Indians to File Suits

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau) Washington—Representative Gerald J. Boyleau of Wausau has introduced a bill to amend an act passed in 1935 permitting the Menominee Indians to bring suit against the United States in the court of claims. Boyleau's bill would enable the Indians to bring several suits instead of one, as is now provided for. It also provides for a method of determining the damages that were suffered allegedly by the Indians because of the government cutting their timber.

According to the Wausau representative, the method presented in the bill has been approved by expert foresters as being a scientific method of computing the damage.

Priest Makes Magic His Hobby, Performs for Fun

Milwaukee—(P)—A master of magic, yet pastor of St. Helen's Catholic church, is the Rev. C. F. Wasniewski, who says he knows enough of the dark arts to put on a two-hour show each day for a year. But there is nothing dark or sinister about jolly Father Wasniewski's trickery. All his tricks are performed for the fun and amusement of his friends in the rectory. And he knows plenty of them.

There are more than 6,000 units of magic in Father Wasniewski's library, and he has in addition more than 2,000 mechanical tricks and properties. That is the extent of the priest's hobby, gathered together from all parts of the country and abroad over a period of 17 years.

Strictly a Hobby

Magicians and other leaders in the entertainment world say Father Wasniewski's repertoire is more than sufficient and extensive to make him a fortune on the stage, but he consistently turns down offers for stage appearances preferring to keep his hobby strictly a hobby.

He is very modest about the large "bag of tricks."

"I have just a few tricks I play with," he said. "They afford me some diversion."

He likes card tricks best. Although he has one of each trick deck ever put out, he never carries one with him. He would rather use some regulation deck belonging to someone else. Before young audiences he has a mechanical duck to help him with his card tricks. The duck's name is Otto. The youngster names a card, and Otto dips his bill into the box, and out it comes. Father Wasniewski says he has yet to make a mistake, at least when his "master" is around.

One of the most satisfactory things about a visit with Father Wasniewski is that he explains

Hamilton Hints Change in Party National Policy

Republican Chairman to Deliver First of 4 Speeches Saturday

Washington—(P)—The decision of Republican Chairman John D. M. Hamilton to break his silence on political affairs forecast a change today in the party's recent policy of letting Democrats argue national issues among themselves.

Hamilton said he would deliver on Saturday night the first of four radio speeches in successive weeks.

"I have done a great deal of listening in the last six months," he said. "All over the country I find the old lines of political allegiance shifting and new lines forming. Political developments since the election have been rapid and important. It seems to me the time has come to look at the new political picture, to re-examine the old, and to discuss the position and attitude of the Republican party in the changed setup."

Hamilton was one of the Republican leaders who counseled against any efforts to make the president's court proposal a partisan issue.

May Change Strategy

Consequently the 16 Republican senators and 86 Republican representatives have made only occasional criticisms of the measure, although nearly all have indicated they would vote against it. Some party workers predicted Hamilton's speeches might result in more vigorous opposition to the bill.

Republican legislators have been more outspoken on President Roosevelt's economy appeal than on any other subject this session.

They endorsed his demand last week for a reduction of government expenses, and some—notably Representative Taber (R-N. Y.)—urged a flat 10 per cent cut in departmental appropriations. Senator Byrnes (D-S. C.) is the author of a similar proposal.

Minority members of the house, have confined speechmaking in fact, largely to administration

20,000 Children Get Tuberculin Tests

Madison—(P)—More than 20,000 Wisconsin children received tuberculin tests during the first three months of 1937 in the most intensive drive against tuberculosis ever carried on in the state. Dr. C. A. Harper, state health officer, said today.

Aided by county nurses in 30 counties and by 12 district nurses, nine physicians in charge of sanitary districts into which Wisconsin is divided for administration of the state-federal health program, have been waging a successful battle against the "white plague."

Tests made by local physicians in cooperation with the state program showed approximately 1,500 positive reactors, Dr. Harper said.

"Experience has shown that only a small percentage of the positive reactors will prove to have tuberculosis in its active forms," he added.

Further tests are being made to identify these cases. Determined effort on the part of the public and the medical profession is spelling success for the campaign."

Prepare to Open Mills And Camps: Strike Ends

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.—(P)—The Cadillac Saw Lumber company prepared to reopen its mills and woods camps tomorrow under a wage agreement reached between the Saw Mill and Timber Workers' union, an A. F. of L. affiliate, and the management. The agreement, affecting 120 men, provides for a minimum wage of 29 cents an hour and a graduated higher scale for skilled workers.

spending policies. Nearly every week Representatives Gifford of Massachusetts, Rich of Pennsylvania or some other Republican has criticized government fiscal methods.

On many bills the house Republicans have voted virtually as a unit. They held a special caucus to decide to support the Gavagan anti-lynching bill, which also was backed by northern Democrats. It passed over the opposition of southern members.

Action by the handful of Republican senators this spring has been less concerted, although most of them have spoken individually against the court bill.

EVE'S ORCHARD

By MARGARET WIDDEMER

SYNOPSIS: Eve Mannersfield goes back to her 200-year-old house and orchard in Connecticut after five working years in New York. She plans to rent, marry gay, slim Denny and return to Manhattan apartment life. But the tendency to stay in her beloved old home grows. Uncle Henry, an old family friend, moves in to help Eve run the place. Peter the penniless artist, his wife Marilyn and their serious young son Judge, join the menage as boarders. Calm, practical George Cleveland loves Eve, but she thinks only of Denny.

Chapter 20 No Free Boarders

JUDGE gave a yell, hastily muffled, of small-boy laughter. Ellen, trimly wrapped in Eve's calico apron, her sleeves turned back, pulled Eve down into the empty chair. "Sh-hh," she said. "We hoped we'd be able to get you out here, but we didn't know how. There are only enough chops and peas and pie for two, or at most three; so we got it up we'd eat out here--this being a supper you see but the others getting a dinner--and bring 'em in a tray."

"Grand!" Eve said without further discussion. She dropped down, with a passing bug to Judge, and passed her plate for everything. "And I made the cocoa," Judge said with strolling pride. "But it's Uncle Henry's cow milk--"

"Now, son--" said Uncle Henry. Judge squealed and said: "Oh, I forgot! But now she knows I can't tell! Can't I tell?"

Uncle Henry looked at Judge with mild reproach. "You got to learn to keep other folks' secrets, son, if you're goin' to work round with me."

Judge was so sensitive, and one never knew what it would be about, that Eve was prepared to see the little boy, tired already by a long auto ride, flush up or even nearly cry. But somehow he and Uncle Henry had established an understanding already. He was more like a real child than Eve had ever seen him, and accepted the words sensibly.

"I guess you're right," he said. "I just didn't think. But... you tell 'em."

"Yes, confess all, Uncle Henry. Did you bring the cow over in your suitcase?"

Judge squealed again and started to speak and put a hand over his mouth desperately.

"Well, daughter, there isn't much to tell except that I wasn't sure whether Bill Keeler would have got around to havin' old Belle butchered. I havin' no place to keep her when at Emily's. But you have a tight cowshed, and there's plenty pasture. So Oliver said I just walked down and found out Belle was still in the land of the livin' and let her home. I tell you," said Uncle Henry, content. "I was right glad. I always liked old Belle. Guess I'll have time for churning. I mostly did it anyhow."

"And he says that when the summer people get here he can sell all the butter we don't use--and eggs--" chanted Judge. "Isn't it grand? I think he's very generous, because nobody said he was to!" he added puzzled.

"I aim to pay my way here, son. Everybody has a right to pay their way."

Judge took a deep drink of cocoa, and thought hard for a moment. "You know something?" he finally said, looking solemnly round at them all, with a musing of cream on his upper lip. "That's an idea I've always had myself. You and I must be very much alike, Uncle Henry."

"I guess we are, son," said Uncle Henry seriously. "I guess we are. Now, if you've eaten all your skin will hold, which it looks like to me, do you want to take the tray in to your parents when Ellen gets it fixed?"

They sent Judge in, very careful and proud, with the first course, the canned soup Eve had bought for three people frugally the day before.

Cruisers for Uncle Henry

She wanted to laugh. Now it was the cow! Belle would be a help no doubt of that. But she was one more thing to be uprooted when the renters came! Well, it was no worse than the chickens, except that Uncle Henry would have his parting with her over again...

"While they're eating the rest," Ellen told Eve. "Uncle Henry and I want to talk to you."

Uncle Henry said nothing. He merely went on with his salad; then he produced a box of cruizers from behind the breadbox, and all three attacked them.

"Not as good as what your aunt used to make, Eveline," he said. "But I sort of felt like cruizers, so I got 'em at the grocer's last night."

"I'll make you a batch," Eve promised readily. She wanted to make cruizers for Uncle Henry, and give Judge a college education and endow Peter and Marilyn for life and establish Ellen in a repertory theater. That was how she felt toward everybody, with the feel of Denny's arms around her still.

Uncle Henry's face brightened. "They do set better on the stomach," he admitted. But he took another commercial one, just the same, while Ellen resolutely began talking.

"We got you alone, to make sure you didn't impulsively keep the Featherstones' free," Ellen said sternly. "Uncle Henry's going to carry his end. I refuse to come near unless I can do it on a modest cash basis weekends. We're about to have an understanding. All you have is your savings account. I think you were crazy to throw up your job just to come out and clean this house, but that's your party. You'll probably get another job or marry, but neither one is quite so sure as death and taxes."

"The Featherstones don't want to be kept free," Eve said meekly. "They only want me to carry them till their income is due, June first."

"Renters are mostly over one way or the other by May fifteenth," said Uncle Henry, as if they were a distracted Judge. "Isn't it grand? I

Three New London Youths Arraigned on Charge Of Breaking, Entering

New London—The theft of 350 pounds of solder from the solderhouse of the Borden Milk Products company last Wednesday night was solved Saturday afternoon with the arrest of three New London youths by Chief of Police Harry D. Macklin.

They were bound over to circuit court and placed in the county jail at Waupaca when they were unable to furnish bond of $200 each.

The solder, in the form of 27 bars weighing about 27 pounds each, was recovered intact from junk dealers at Oshkosh to where it was traced by New London police. It had been sold for 2 cents a pound, netting $9, Macklin said. The Borden company valued the bar metal at $125.

Special Services Held at Town of Brillion Church To Mark 75th Anniversary

Forest Junction—When, in 1860, Michael Reichardt and his betrothed, Catherine Caffisch, trudged a laborious pathway from their homes in town of Maple Grove, Manitowoc county, to Neenah to obtain the services of a clergyman for performing their marriage ceremony, they doubtless entertained hopes that clergymen might be more accessible to their progeny. But they may have had no visions of a Methodist congregation of nearly 200 members, which, 75 years later, would trace its origin back to their marriage.

Returning to Maple Grove, they were visited in 1861 by the Methodist Rev. C. G. Becker of Newton, who listed the place in his schedule of circuit-riding appointments. Religious meetings were held in the Reichardt and other homes. Then on Feb. 12, 1862, under the Rev. John Runder of Green Bay, a communion service was held and eight charter members were received. Into what is today the town of Brillion Methodist congregation, which observed its diamond jubilee on Sunday, at the country church three miles east of Forest Junction. Charter members were Michael Reichardt, Catherine Reichardt, Damosius Barth, Anna Barth, H. J. Timm, Minnie Timm, Joachim Persohn, and Caroline Persohn. Oldest member in the congregation today is Mrs. Carl Zick, who as Albertina Persohn was received on Jan. 1, 1860.

Dr. Diekmann Speaks History of the congregation was presented by Henry L. Bastian, secretary of the official board of the church, at the Sunday afternoon session of a four-service jubilee observance, which had opened on Saturday evening. With Dr. J. A. Diekmann, superintendent of Bethesda hospital, Cincinnati, Ohio, as the guest speaker, the congregation and visitors on Sunday afternoon heard him lecture on "A Century of German Speaking Methodism" beginning with the use of this language by this denomination at Danville, Ohio, in 1835. The town of Brillion congregation had been affiliated with the German branch of the church until the recent dissolution of the Chicago-Northwest conference.

Served at first by pastors from the Green Bay circuit, the Brillion congregation was shifted to the Sheboygan circuit in the late 1860s.

The successful players in the clarinet section were Jack Seering and Alice Stanley; cornet, Audrey Dean and George Demming; horn, Valda Dehrke and Eunice Konrad. Edmund Marty of the Lawrence conservatory of music at Appleton judged the solos and offered criticisms after the program.

Announcement of Quarter Prices Stabilize Mart

Same Rates as for 2nd Period Will Prevail Again

Announcement of third quarter prices at second quarter level for most steel products has done much to stabilize the market. Action by leading makers is being followed generally. Determination of prices so far before the usual date was in response to pressure by steel consumers, who found it difficult to quote on their products without knowledge of their costs, says Steel.

The announcement is definite on plates, shapes and bars, wire, cold-finished and semi-finished. Some grades of structural steels are also reaffirmed. More detailed prices will be put out shortly. Tubular goods are not yet covered.

Removal of price uncertainty by this action is expected to steady the market and remove the incentive to speculative buying. Mills expect much less pressure than in the past for place on their books. Some of this effect is already observed.

Reduce Accumulations

Heavy accumulations of orders are being reduced somewhat as specifications in some products are less than shipments. On other items deliveries are still remote. On the whole the delivery situation is improving gradually.

Pig iron producers have not decided on policy for third quarter, but mounting costs of labor, coke and other items may bring an advance. It is believed no decision is likely for a fortnight or more.

Insistent demand for pig iron, heightened not a little by export inquiry and tonnage already booked for foreign shipment, is causing further productive capacity to be blown in. In addition to the stack already lighted at Central Furnaces, Cleveland, and an additional stack at the Corrigan, McKinney plant of Republic Steel Corp., Cleveland, Colonial Iron Co. will blow in a stack at Ridesburg, Pa., early in May. Other stacks in the East are being prepared for activity. Inquiries for at least 60,000 tons of pig iron for export are pending in the Pittsburgh district.

Rate Is Same

Although some producing centers have made slight increases in operations the national rate remains steady at 91 1/2 per cent capacity for the fourth consecutive week. Cleveland gained three points to 79 1/2 per cent; Buffalo three points to 100 and Chicago half a point to 84 1/2 per cent. No change was made at Pittsburgh, at 95 per cent. Eastern Pennsylvania at 99 1/2, Youngstown at 86, Wheeling at 96, Birmingham at 80, Cincinnati at 86 and St. Louis at 82. Detroit lost five points to 85 per cent.

Prolonged absence of scrap consumers from the market is causing a further decline in prices. Just how far this will continue is difficult to determine, but considerable strength is shown, apparently needing only renewed buying to develop it further. The European buying cartel is said to have placed 200,000 tons with five exporters for shipment in the month of June. Increased storage charges by railroads are to go into effect.

Senator Duffy to Pay Tribute to Marquette

Seeks Reenactment of Trade Practice Act

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau) Madison—Reenactment of the Wisconsin Trades Practices act, which expires at the end of the current fiscal year, is the aim of Assemblyman Harold A. Lytle, (D), Green Bay, a barber and vice president of the Association of Master Barbers of Wisconsin.

Lytle has been active during the past several months among state barbers in an effort to organize support for a bill before the legislature which would make the trades practices act under which the state barbers' code was formulated, a permanent statute. Daily petitions are being received from barbers in all parts of the state in support of the bill.

According to Lytle the barber's code has proven satisfactory, and the majority of the members of the trade want it continued. Hearing on the bill to make the trade act permanent will be held May 12, Mr. Lytle has been informed.

Best Week Since '29

Automotive production last week totaled 132,340 units, the best week since 1929. This is a gain of 1370 over the preceding week, practically all accounted for by better operations by Chrysler General Motors turned out 52,500, Ford 34,500 and Chrysler 25,500. This rate would seem to be approaching full capacity but probably will be bettered in succeeding weeks.

Production of steel rails in 1936 increased 71 1/4 per cent over 1935 output, to a total of 1,219,846 gross tons. This further proves the revival in activities of the carriers and is the largest rail production since 1930. In 1932 only 492,566 tons were rolled.

Continued decline in scrap prices has brought the composite 56 cents lower than the preceding week, to $20.42. This is the fourth decline with a total loss of $1.66 from the peak the first week in April. The composite level now is slightly higher than that of the first week in March. The same influence caused a decline of 11 cents in the iron and steel composite, to $40.36. The finished steel composite remains unchanged at $61.70.

Lime Available For County Farms

Fertilizer Is Aid to Successful Alfalfa-Production, Agent Holds

A new schedule of prices for ground limestone, delivered on farms, was announced today by R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent.

Under the soil conservation program, each farm has a soil building allowance which can be used in the purchase of ground limestone or seed, Swanson stated. Credit will be given at the rate of $1.25 per ton up to the limit of the soil building allowance.

Prices, delivered, are $1.20 per ton for the towns of Ellington and Hortonville, $1.25 per ton for the towns of Black Creek, Bovina, Center, Cheno, Dale, Deer Creek, Green Creek, Liberty, Maine and Maple Creek, and $1.35 per ton for the towns of Freedom, Grand Chute, Osborn, Seymour, Buchanan, Kaukauna, Oshkosh and Vandalia.

Limestone in liberal quantities in addition to good seed, proper irrigation and a well prepared seed bed is essential to successful alfalfa production, the county agent said.

Unclad Bathers Subject to Arrest During Day, but Not At Night--Some Decades Ago

Kaukauna—Did you know that it is unlawful to bathe unclad in the waters of the Fox river within the city limits during the day, but that the clock of darkness makes such a practice permissible at night? And that 45 years ago, if you met a cow strolling aimlessly along a street and persuaded her to accompany you to the city pound, the poundmaster would pay you 25 cents.

The founding fathers of this city ruled in a just and sensible way, but some of their edicts brought to light by an examination of early ordinances seem a bit quaint when viewed from the vantage point of modern life.

For example, these city elders, accustomed to wrestling with coal and wood stoves on brisk mornings, decided in Section 12 of Ordinance No. 6 adopted by the council in 1892 that "it shall be lawful for the owner or occupant of any store building or

Continue Move to Oust Mayor Niesen

Resume Circulation of Petitions Asking Recall Election

Kaukauna—Circulation of petitions asking recall of Mayor John Niesen of Kaukauna, started Saturday, was resumed at Kaukauna this morning.

Activities were suspended Sunday, but leaders of the ouster movement, reported this morning that 30 volunteers were circulating the petition in the city's five wards and that the signatures of approximately 300 voters had been obtained since Saturday morning.

The petitions charge Mayor Niesen failed "to carry out his full duties of mayor" and are a direct result of a recent altercation in a Kaukauna tavern in which Alderman Jule Mertes was injured.

Signatures of 871 voters, or one third of the vote cast in the last mayoralty election are necessary before a recall election can be held.

Funeral Rites Tuesday For Mrs. Anna Popp, 87

She was born Sept. 16, 1849, in Schleswig, Germany, and came to America with her parents at the age of 5 years. The parents then resided on a farm near Jericho, and later at Stockbridge. Miss Anna Kiesner, was married to Ferdinand Popp at Stockbridge on Feb. 22, 1861, and resided near Jericho. Survivors are the two sons, and two daughters Mrs. E. G.
